T. B. TESTS UNDER WAY IN BURLINGTON AREA

Norman Baker
(HIMSELF)

VERNE MARSHALL TELLS THE TRUTH—for once in his life, he did so, that I know of—he says in his editorial column: "Cancer is quite as bewildering a life," says Sir George L. Cheate, London surgeon. "The cells are immortal." If Sir George will visit Iowa before returning home after his lecture in Chicago, he will find at Muscatine a man for whom the "cure" of cancer is simple as a b c—provided the patient has the money.

That's right—Sir George can learn more about curing cancer in one hour in Muscatine at the Baker Hospital—than he will learn in one year in N. Y. City or has learned in his life-time—yes it takes money to be cured of cancer just the same as you pay your local doctor when you are sick—if it had not been for such men as Verne Marshall—whose efforts have tended to drive cancer sufferers to those treatments that do not cure, such as operations, x-ray, and radium which he boasts—then the cost at the Baker Hospital would even be lower than it is now, which is the lowest of any hospital I know of in America—they take some cases with room and board, medical fees, medicines and nurse care for a price lower than you can sleep one week in the average hospital—about $35—Verne was awoken some day—his ignorance will be thrown in his face by his own subscribers eventually—many have dropped his paper already and written him their thoughts—he stands in his area with the only newspaper in Cedar Rapids but some day maybe others may start one there—they surely need it—if you don't believe it—ask the Cedar Rapids Mayor—HE KNOWS.

LITTLE OLD—but good—this little editorial was taken from the Lamotte, Iowa, paper—sent in today by a listener—

Lamotte News—Norman Baker's KINT broadcasting station at Muscatine went off the air Friday afternoon after the District of Columbia court of appeals had vacated its stay order of June 5. Baker's attorneys have announced they will start new court actions. Lots of people don't like Baker because he tells the truth over the radio and they set out to put him off the air. If they didn't like what he said why didn't they turn the dial on their set and tune him off, and let those that did want to listen have the privilege. Who does the air belong to?—Lamotte, Ia.

WHY OH WHY—don't Governor Turner awaken—why leave all this expense go on and on regarding the farmer's cows—they are spending more money than the cows are worth—we, the taxpayers, pay the bills—they are now through testing in Cedar county, and still T. B. germs can be found in the milk coming from those tested cows—if you don't believe it, ask the state to test the milk of all cows they tested with tuberculosis which passed O. K.—everybody with knowledge of the subject knows that the tuberculosis test does not guarantee pure milk—but the MILK TEST DOES, and costs 50c per cow—now we pay over $10.00 no doubt for every cow's milk the soldiers or state men raise—when will the people awaken—a special session of the Iowa assembly should be called to stop this outrage—and to think that Leonard Simmers, of Ottumwa has the effrontery to come out for Lieut. Gov. next year in face of his being in favor of all this foolishness—he won't get far—the farmers remember his actions when thousands of them went to the capital.

Hoover and Laval Confer Upon Ills Wracking World

SEEK REMEDY FOR TROUBLES OF 2 NATIONS

Both Leaders Hoping That Parley Will Be Success

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
WASHINGTON—(INS)—French and American policies in the affairs of a weary world—which have been radically divergent in recent years—were placed vis-a-vis today in the persons of President Hoover and Premier Laval.
Their conferences, beginning today, will run the gamut of international irritants, from war debts to reparations, from disarmament to the question of France's "security" from gold reserves to the matter of extending the international debt moratorium.
Out of these discussions may come much—or nothing.
Both Want Cooperation
Washington is hopeful for much, hopeful of a reconciliation of Franco-American views that will spell cooperation in the future. But in view of France's intransigent views of disarmament, security, and reparations, there is behind this attitude of hopefulness a very discernible air of skepticism that either the French or the American viewpoints will be materially altered by the brief three days of personal contact. The differences are held to be too deep-seated for ready solution.
Neither Premier Laval nor President Hoover would admit having a definite program to offer the other today.
The French statesman merely said that he was here as the guest of the American government to discuss world problems.
WASHINGTON—(INS)—Paying tribute to the legions who went to the aid of France from these shores in 1917, Pierre Laval, president of the French council of ministers, laid a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington today.
Then he turned to a round of official duties.

ATLANTIC RUM DEALER SOUGHT Hunted in Kidnaping Of Woman From Her Home

ATLANTIC, Ia.—(INS)—Charley Porter, reputed local gambler and connected with liquor deals here several times in the past, is now being sought by Cass county officers on a charge of kidnaping Gertrude Frellinger Boggs Saturday afternoon from the home of her brother-in-law, Earl Boggs. It was revealed here today.
Porter is alleged to have appeared at the Boggs home Saturday night, at the point of a gun, forced M. (Cep)—Boggs and his wife into his car and taken them for a "ride." Boggs was ordered out of the car south of Atlantic and Porter disappeared with the woman.
Mrs. Boggs and Porter, former operator of a local hotel, are said to have disappeared here together a year ago and the woman recently returned to Atlantic after she is alleged to have been forced by Porter to work with him in the wheat fields in Kansas during the harvest season. She is divorced wife of Max Turk, now under sentence to Fort Madison in connection with a series of southwestern Iowa robberies last winter.

MURDERESS EXPECTED TO GIVE SELF UP SOON

Declare That Woman May Be a Tool Of Drug Ring

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—(INS)—With crowds lining the walls and corridors of the inquest room, the first official inquiry into the trunk murder deaths of Agnes Lerol, 36, nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, 24, red-haired school teacher, was started today by coroner Frank Nance.
Many women were among the spectators who were drawn by the possibility that Mrs. Ruth Judd, the "phantom defendant" might materialize in the flesh at the hearing.

By WALLACE K. RAWLES
LOS ANGELES, Cal.—(INS)—Ruth Judd, "phantom defendant," was represented by a flash and blood attorney today as the county coroner summoned a jury for the inquest into the deaths of the two Phoenix women, victims of the ghastly "trunk murder."

Attorney Louis P. Russell, formerly municipal judge, was employed to represent Mrs. Judd, 27-year-old hospital secretary, now a fugitive in the first of two inquiries into the responsibility for the deaths of Mrs. Judd's erstwhile chums, Agnes Ann Lerol, 36-year-old nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, 24, red-haired invalid school teacher.
Associated with Russell in a defense mapped for Mrs. Judd by her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, was Richard Canfield, fiery youthful lawyer who defended William Edward Hickman, "the Fox," murderer here four years ago.

Mrs. Judd, who has eluded the most widespread police net since the famous Hickman pursuit in 1927, was expected to surrender to Los Angeles authorities after the inquest had determined her status.
The alleged murderess has been missing since Monday afternoon when she vainly tried to claim the two trunks in which she assertedly shipped the bodies from Phoenix to Los Angeles. She is believed to be in the city.

Japan Asks Protection For Subjects in China

PEACE OFFICERS SHEDDING TEARS Tear Gas Turns Group Into a Meeting of Sob-Sisters

ATLANTIC, Ia.—(INS)—There was weeping and gnashing of teeth as the convention of Cass county peace officers here Thursday took on the aspect of a gathering of sob-sisters and there was not a dry eye in the crowd. They were no crocodile tears that were shed and to the outsider it was indeed a sad sight but the cause of the cry session was a little shell fired from an innocent-looking fountain pen-like weapon.
That tear gas is an effective means of handling offenders may be vouched for by the officers following the demonstration of the gas.
Nearly fifty peace officers attending the gathering, which was addressed by Sheriff W. A. McKee, R. W. Nebergall of the state department of justice, T. C. Whitmore, Atlantic attorney and former district judge; A. J. Cruise of Mason, president of the Cass county bankers association; D. J. Bode of Grinstead, chairman of the Cass supervisors; and County Attorney E. B. Holton of Anita.

Entering the bank with drawn revolvers, they forced O. H. Schutte, cashier, and C. M. Siems, assistant cashier, to lie on the floor. They looted both the cages and the safe. There were no customers in the bank at the time.
The trio escaped toward Chicago in a small sedan. Officers started a check to determine exactly how much was taken. Union is a small town fifteen miles from Belvidere.

Information was filed against the barber, who left town in preference to paying a fine of $50. His wife left here recently, taking their daughter with her, and she was not heard from since.

Island of Cyprus Is Disgruntled With Rule of Britain

LONDON—(INS)—The weight of the British empire was being thrown today against a few thousand inhabitants in the Mediterranean island of Cyprus, who have raised the standard of revolt against British rule there.

The admiralty announced that the destroyer Acasta and the Cruiser Shropshire reached Cyprus before 8 a. m. today, and that the cruiser London and the destroyer Achilles were expected to arrive during the day.
Six troop-carrying airplanes, packed with riflemen, are following the air lanes from Alexandria, Egypt, to the sun-kissed towns where population of Greek origin is burning fiery crosses and, led by Greek orthodox priests, shouting "down with the tyrants," "out with the foreigners" and "give us union with Greece."

MURDER PUZZLE IS CLEARED UP

CHICAGO—(INS)—A murder mystery which has baffled police for nearly two years was solved today with the confession of Vernon Royals, 17, that he shot and killed Mrs. Agnes Lavender near a railway station in February, 1929.
After re-enacting the killing at the scene of the shooting, the youth told detectives he whipped out his revolver and shot the 35-year-old woman when she attempted to run away from him. He said he had asked her for ten cents as she stood in the station.
After the woman gave him the coin the youth ordered her to follow him along the railroad tracks. She walked with him for a few feet and then broke away, when young Royals shot her down, according to his confession.

STEEL INDUSTRY FAST COMING BACK TO OWN

NEW YORK—(INS)—Declaring that the financial world was straightening itself out and that the House of Steel was now in order, Charles M. Schwab, veteran soldier of the steel industry, today sounded a trumpet call to the members of the American iron and steel institute to "fall into the job" of improving economic conditions.
Schwab, president of the institute and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, asserted that "industry has gotten its second wind" and that "economy and efficiency" would lead business out of the depression.
"The improving of our credit structure by virtue of the steps advocated by President Hoover and the bankers is a fundamental step in the right direction," Schwab told the general meeting of the institute. "Fear has been lessened. There will be no collapse. The sources of credit have been mobilized and we shall pull through."

"The nations are like individuals. Each feels superior. There is no collective thing that binds us to the nation and makes us ready nor for."

J. EVERSMAN FARM FIRST ONE VISITED

Not a Man Is Found On Premises When Troopers Call

BURLINGTON, Ia.—(INS)—Search was begun by national guardsmen this afternoon for James Miller, Des Moines county farmer, who faces arrest for failure to comply with order to round up all his cattle for tuberculosis test. He disappeared after the troopers and state veterinarians learned he failed to include four calves in the herd assembled for the test.

By CURTIS MAX, Jr.
BURLINGTON, Ia.—(INS)—Seeking a showdown in the "war" engendered by farmers' opposition to the state bovine tuberculosis test law, Brig. Gen. Park A. Findley today led a detachment of Iowa national guard cavalrymen into Tama township, Des Moines county.

The troopers, accompanied by state veterinarians, went first to the farm of Jake Eversman, leader of the objectors, to administer tests to his herd. Not a man was found on the premises when the cavalrymen arrived, although the farm was the scene of a head objector's mass meeting Tuesday and Wednesday.

There were, however, about 100 persons standing on the road in front of the farm, viewing the activities with curiosity. Just before the troops arrived, Clara Eversman, Jake's daughter, fastened an American flag to the gatepost and placed beside it a sign which read: "We stand by the flag that was fought for in order that the people might have just laws."

Eversman's wife told authorities that her husband had left the farm early yesterday, adding she hoped he would stay away "until the trouble is over."
Mrs. Eversman told the officers that her cows were in several pastures and that they had not been rounded up because she never received notice of a test to be given.

Soldiers were sent into the fields to round up the herd. Other troopers meantime cleared the road in front of the farm and established a guard line. All traffic was halted on the highway.
As these movements were in progress, a shot was fired. The apparently was a warning from one of the guardsmen that small groups of farmers were approaching the farm. The farmers soon dispersed.

A report was circulated that Eversman had fled into Illinois to escape possible arrest on a charge of conspiracy. At the same time, state officials believed he might be hiding in Des Moines county.
Absence of the objectors was not surprising to guardsmen officials, since they believed the farmers abandoned an attempt to resist testing at the Eversman farm and probably are planning a protest move at another site.

Dr. Peter Malcolm, head of the state veterinarians, said he was willing to test herds throughout the day, despite intermittent heavy showers. Gen. Findley did not indicate whether he intended to go to other farms, however.

Rain Halts 'Soldiers'
An early morning downpour of rain prevented the national guard infantry from repeating today the surprise move they staged in Cedar county a month ago when testing there under martial law proved a fiasco.
Five companies were awakened

MORROW LEAVES WIFE FORTUNE

None of Children Are Named in Will of Statesman

HACKENSACK, N. J.—(INS)—The entire estate of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, estimated in the millions, was left by the noted banker and statesman to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, according to the will filed for probate here today.
The will, made in January, 1927, stated that the widow is made residuary legatee "with every confidence that she will provide for herself and children as she may determine in her and their best interests."
None of the four Morrow children was named in the will.

T. B. TESTING IS UNDER WAY AT BURLINGTON

Jake Eversman Farm Is First Visited By Troopers

at 4 a. m., expecting to eat a hurried breakfast and march five and one-half miles to the Eversman farm to surround the insurgent farmers.

Just as the bugles called, a light shower began. Undismayed, the 280 troopers gulped steaming coffee. When the infantrymen fell in for the march, however, the shower became a heavy rain. Gen. Findley, after a conference, decided to call off the surprise move, and the guardsmen were ordered back to their beds.

Testing Proceeds

Testing at the Eversman farm proceeded quietly until 10 a. m., the daughter, rushed out and called for Gen. Findley.

"Gen. Findley," she shouted, "nearly hysterical. You're here to enforce the law. You make those veterinarians and the school of serum they're putting in our cattle."

"Lady," the troop commander answered, "I'm just a soldier. You had better see the veterinarians."

The girl went to the barn, only to rush out a short time later to say she was unable to obtain any serum. Gen. Findley referred her to Dr. Malcom.

In the meantime, Dr. Malcom had been at the neighboring farm of Charles Miller to give a round-up order for testing. Miller declared he had no cattle, but records showed he owned fifteen head. When told that if he did not round up his herd he would be arrested, the farmer did as he was ordered.

Girl Wanted Serum

When the Eversman girl continued to insist on getting some of the serum, her mother rushed from the farm house and said, "Ida, you come in before you get into trouble. These aren't your cows."

Mrs. Eversman then asked Gen. Findley if she would be reimbursed for possible damages made in the testing.

"We've had our cows tested three times," she explained. "The first time we lost five calves, the second time nine calves, and 25 calves the last time. Who's going to pay for that?"

Gen. Findley referred her to the veterinarians.

When the testing was completed at the Eversman farm, the veterinarians announced they would proceed to other farms.

Gen. Findley expressed an opinion that two or three more "critical situations" were to be faced before the rebellion could be broken.

BURLINGTON, Ia. (Special)—In a statement Thursday night the son said that, aside from his father, Jake Eversman, had received notices of impending tests.

"We never opposed the tests because we were never asked that they be made," the son said.

"Now that we have been browbeaten," he continued, "and are conscious of the fact that property and constitutional rights as American citizens have been taken away, we will admit that our cattle may be tested, but the battle for justice has just begun."

"We are not a class of bolsheviks but citizens of the state and cherish the fact. We can understand why compulsory tuberculosis test law should be given so much consideration, when other laws are being violated. We have taken every precaution against any violence."

Eversman declared as false reports that schools were dismissed and that children and their mothers congregated on the Eversman farm. He said many women accompanied their husbands to the mass meeting, which he termed "not unusual."

Ask Suspension by Governor

He asserted the test law had been suspended in Nebraska and stated that objectors had asked the Iowa governor for the same treatment.

"The law was not enforced in Nebraska when less than 50 per cent of the tests, he said.

"The militia has been called out in Iowa three times, twice to protect private property and the third time to destroy it," he avowed.

"We have violated no standard of decency and have fought with clean hands. The state has violated the law by testing cattle and holding tests on Sunday. We have asked the governor regarding the enforcement of the prohibition and other blue laws and why we farmers should have this law pushed down our throats at the points of machine guns."

"We told the governor we were living under a democratic form of government and asked why it was not possible to let the people dispose of this," Eversman said.

Law Must Be Enforced

"The law is on the statute books and must be enforced," the governor replied.

"The press and the radio have said that the militia was called out to maintain law and order. We as citizens feel that as soldiers drive up and down the highways with machine guns, that it was an agitation rather than a peace measure. It takes big men to take a challenge and resist the desire to fight. But we pose as men who cherish human blood and the souls of men and the preservation of the country's manhood," Ed Eversman said.

Check-up of Money Realized by Legion Show Is Incomplete

No announcement as to the amount of money realized from the American Legion auxiliary's musical comedy, "Jack Tarr," presented at the high school auditorium Wednesday and Thursday nights can be made as yet, it was announced today. Members of the committee in charge are busy today making a check of the amounts received and the expenditures.

The crowd which witnessed the presentation Thursday night was slightly larger than the Wednesday night's audience and the committee feels confident that a neat sum will be realized. All money secured from the presentation will be used for the aid of unemployed.

One of the features of the musical comedy was the "Kiddies pageant," which was supervised by Miss Mary Ella Fuller and her mother, Mrs. V. Fuller.

The ages of the children ranged from three to 12 years and each was attired in costume. Their portion of the entertainment comprised dancing numbers and musical readings.

Every type of dance step was presented. These included acrobatic, tap, toe, Hawaiian and ballet. At the conclusion of the program each child that participated was presented with a rose.

WRITER THINKS RADICAL PRESS IS NEEDED NOW

Declares Papers That Tell the Truth Is Country's Need

That the crying need of the country today is a newspaper that will tell all the truth to its readers, is the contention of George H. Shoaf of Los Angeles, Calif. Writing in a recent issue of an Oklahoma City paper with a nation-wide circulation and which, according to its motto, is "a journal for people who love their country enough to think and work for it," Mr. Shoaf declares that only a small percentage of persons in this country read a paper or magazine of any kind.

The writer attacks the capitalist press especially for the way in which the Mooney and Billings cases were presented to the general public through the average newspaper.

"At the time of the preparedness day explosion in San Francisco in the summer of 1916 the newspapers everywhere carried the news as a murder story," he writes. "People read the story, joined with the press in denouncing Mooney and Billings as the murderers, and quickly forgot it," continues Mr. Shoaf.

Farmers' Case Similar

Many farmers in Muscatine, Cedar, Henry and surrounding counties have expressed themselves as being dissatisfied with the manner in which members of the Lee Syndicate newspapers, and those cooperating with them handled the news of opposition to the state compulsory tuberculosis tests for cattle.

The dissatisfaction has gone so far that representatives of those papers have been barred from farmers' gatherings on several occasions. Subscriptions to these papers have fallen off considerably and recently sellers to two Lee Syndicate newspapers, the Davenport Democrat and the Daily Times, both published in Davenport, were unable to sell their wares and gave them away rather than return with them to Davenport.

Mr. Shoaf concludes his two column article with the following:

Radical Press Needed

"Never was a radical press more sorely needed than now. In the midst of the most terrible industrial crisis in history, with multiplied millions out of work, with a record winter of poverty, starvation and crime coming and the future black it would appear that if brave words, plainly written and widely circulated were ever needed, they are needed now. Not a multiplicity of papers with a divided support, but one flaming journal of merciless attack, at the editorial helm of which are writers not afraid to go to jail, is the supreme and urgent demand of the hour."

"Can that, will that demand be met?"

Address System at Jefferson Field to Tell Fans of Plays

Football fans witnessing the game tonight under the flood lights at Jefferson field between the Little Muskies and Fort Madison will not have to guess which player it was who scored the touchdown or which one made the last tackle and so forth.

The reason is that a public address system, similar to the one used at Case field in Washington, has been installed around the field. It was donated to the high school by John Elfers.

F. G. Messenger, principal at the high school, announced that he wasn't sure who would do the announcing but thought that it would be Howard McElraith, coach of the high school B squad.

L. Craft Proves He Was Not Implicated in Riegel Offense

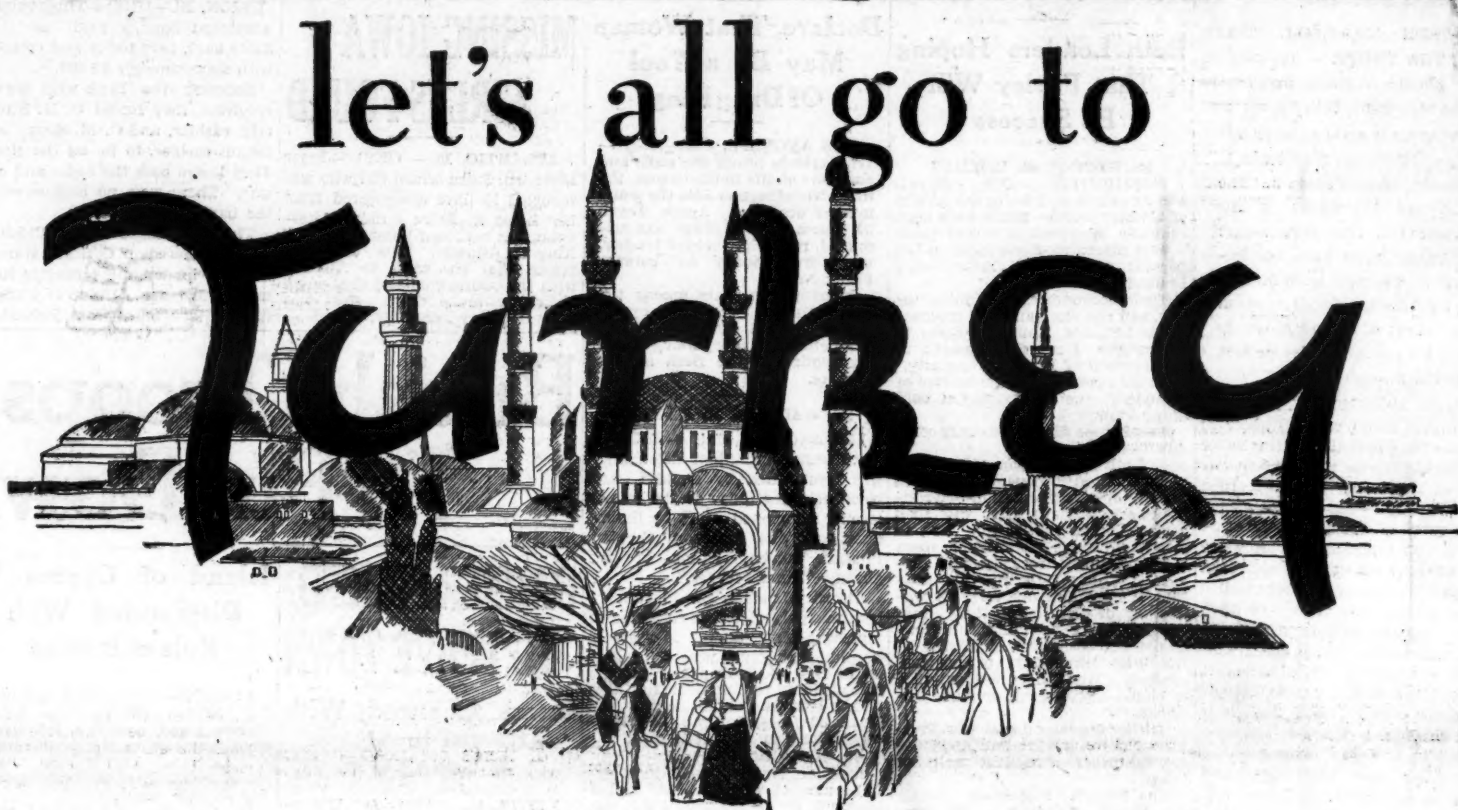

Lionel E. Craft, 313 East Third street, arrested Tuesday night while in company of Carl F. Riegel, of Cranston, and taken to Ottumwa Wednesday to face a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses, was acquitted Thursday afternoon. Riegel was sentenced to six days in jail on a like charge.

The charges arose out of allegations that Riegel issued worthless bank checks to pay for gasoline he purchased at various service stations in Iowa. Craft was in no way implicated in the affair, he states.

According to the story of the Muscatine man, he met Riegel in Des Moines and was offered a ride to this city. He accepted, but when they arrived in Muscatine the two were immediately placed under arrest upon complaint of Cranston authorities. That place, however, waived its right to the men in custody and they were taken to Ottumwa, Wednesday.

Where Turkish tobacco comes from Eastward ho! Four thousand miles nearer the rising sun—let's go! To the land of mosques and minarets—so different from our skyscrapers, stacks and steeples.

Let's see this strange, strange country. Let's see the land where the tobacco* grows in small leaves on slender stalks—to be tenderly picked, leaf by leaf, hung in long fragrant strings, shelter-dried and blanket-cured. Precious stuff!

Let's taste that delicate aromatic flavor—that subtle difference that makes a cigarette!

XANTHI...CAVALLA...SMYRNA...

SAMSOUN...famous tobaccos!

*Turkish tobacco is to cigarettes what seasoning is to food—the "spice," the "sauce"—or what rich, sweet cream is to coffee!

You can taste the Turkish in Chesterfield—there's enough of it, that's why. Chesterfield has not been stingy with this important addition to good taste and aroma; four famous kinds of Turkish leaf—Xanthi, Cavalla, Samsoun and Smyrna—go into the smooth, "spicy" Chesterfield blend.

This is just one more reason for Chesterfield's better taste. Tobaccos from far and near, the best of their several kinds—and the right kinds. And pure, tasteless cigarette paper, the purest made. The many requisites of a milder, better smoke, complete!

That's why they're GOOD—they've got to be and they are.

Winter Evening Gown Has Trim Slim Waistline

By ALICE LANGELEIER

PARIS—(INS)—slim silhouette and a slimmer and trimmer waistline are Fashion's main ingredients for the winter evening gown.

Normally the waist is about where Nature intended it to be, but actually should be placed where it best suits the wearer, either a little lower or a little higher. The essential point is for the waistline to look very small indeed and hips, too, are kept down to an illusion of slenderness, no matter what their actual girth.

Schiaparelli puts the slimmest of waists on a formal evening frock of white peau d'ange satin with a big bow in the centerback falling to a train which can be draped across the front and clipped to the waistline with a jewel. This makes it practical for dancing purposes. The bodice has twisted shoulder straps.

Long pinches in a ruby red velvet gown to make a slender and slinky silhouette with a close-fitting sheath to the knees where there is a circular flower making a train in back. Two puffs hung from the back recall the 1880 bustle.

Nearly all evening gowns, at least the very formal ones, are backless or have a complicated arrangement of straps. There is the deep V-back and some of the designers have tried effects with a wide piece of the material crossing in folds from shoulder to shoulder allowing the back to be seen below. The very newest thing is to make the jewelry a part of the gown, letting the pendant hang from a band of the material.

Nearly 126,000 sheep and goatskins were shipped from Bahia, Brazil, to the United States in a recent month.

A railway connecting San Jose and Guanacaste, Costa Rica, is being promoted.

A SUMPTUOUS FASHION

Sumptuous is the one word that best describes a new evening frock of ivory-toned chiffon velvet with its bow in back formed of loops of orange and brown velvet.

FEATHER SHOES

They have the element of novelty as well as chic, these opera pumps of patent leather with a tiny feather ornament at the sides repeating on the Eugenie hat.

MEXICAN GLASS

The lovely shade of blue found only in Mexican glass has infinite decorative possibilities—and one may like to know that for the first time tall tumblers are priced less than ninety cents apiece. Heretofore they have been much more.

FRENCH CHINA

If you have ever gazed longingly at the old china exhibited in the Cluny Museum in Paris you may be interested to know that many of the designs have been reproduced and the plates and cups and saucers are perfect replicas, even to the age old markings.

RIBBED JERSEY

Frocks of ribbed jersey have an important place in the autumn wardrobe especially if one chooses a copy of a French model with pleated frills of the fabric.

Any candle may be made to fit a candlestick if dipped into very hot water long enough to soften the wax.

DARE INTERPRETS the MODE

Schiaparelli fashions a swanky suit from novelty jersey, the coat red and green and the trouser-skirt brown and red, and fastens it smartly with S-shaped buttons. The blouse is dark red silk, slightly figured.

IF YOU'D attain the latest fashions in a hurry, take a train! Not just any kind of train, of course, but the right kind—the kind that spells chic for autumn evening wear!

For honestly, now, bustles have had their little day and subsided rather reluctantly to back-peplums—basques, don't we call them? And these back-peplums, usually of stiff material, or material artificially stiffened to hold them out with the proper air of jauntyness, have been getting longer and longer until they provide interesting and smart trains which are, above all, graceful! And as the bustle just wasn't graceful, no matter how you looked at it, and as the peplum shared the bustle's fault of bulkiness, we should be grateful indeed to the train, which is a charming adornment to the grace of the gown.

Apron trains which extend from the waist in a downward direction, fishtail trains which sweep far out behind Miladi Moderne as she walks and spread at the end into a definite fishtail-shaped fan, panel trains which extend from the shoulders in a stately and sweeping fashion, split trains which drape about the hips on either side and join at about the knees into one train, and side trains which trail on the floor on both sides—these are just some of the latest developments in trainland. 'N' they all share equally in an old-world glamourousness that's at once smart and becoming!

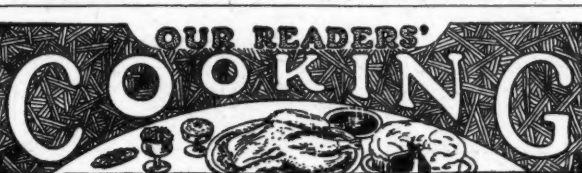

If there's one smart autumnal trick that Schiaparelli has missed in the creation of this swanky sports suit, I don't know what it is. You can see from my sketch that the suit consists of a plain short coat and a trouser-skirt, but it'll probably be news that the coat is of green and red novelty jersey, and the trouser-skirt of the same jersey.

only of brown and red! What with its interesting falling autumn leaf coloring, its smart tailoring and its gold S-shaped buttons, it has just about all the qualities necessary to make a success of autumn sports wear.

For that football game, for instance, wouldn't a chic, warm suit of this sort be a welcome change from the all too present fur coat idea?

And lest we forget that blouse—it's of dark red silk, lightly figured, the front and sleeves being cut in one piece, and with a scarf-neckline chief arrangement which informality.

4 BLOCKS APART By Arthur Somers Roche

SYNOPSIS

Jimmy Farrell, Broadway "hoof," rescues a beautiful girl suffering from amnesia. Davenport Rayne, petty racketeer, recognizes her in Jimmy's bachelor apartment as Julie Treherne, society girl, and suggests that they blackmail her millionaire father. Jimmy knocks him down and Rayne plans to get even.

Two weeks later Julie agrees to marry Ralph Curson, a man of her own social standing. Together they go to the Trebisond Night Club, where Jimmy Farrell has just been taken on as substitute entertainer. Julie overhears Rayne plotting with three men to "get" Jimmy as he dances. To forestall them she does a feature dance with him.

The next evening, at a private party, Jimmy again appears as entertainer, and the orchestra leader calls on Julie to dance with him once more. This time he finishes the dance with a kiss, and declares he is going to try to win Julie for his wife. Ralph is furiously jealous, and partly to pique him Jimmy accepts the invitation of Dolly Wanders, her best friend, to tea next day. She has just told Jimmy that he may see her home that afternoon when a fat, overworn man speaks to her.

CHAPTER XVIII
It Couldn't Be Love

N AME'S BLEEKER," he said, "and I guess you're Miss Treherne, ain't you?"

"That was certainly a wonderful thing you did at the Trebisond the other night, Miss Treherne. I'm Farrell's manager. How come you happened to know a hooper like him? I didn't know Jimmy ever done any stepping around to places like this."

He indicated the room and its people with a gesture of his cigar.

Julie colored from an inner feeling of shame.

Deep down inside she knew that she had been afraid all along that Jimmy would tell his intimates of her night at his apartment.

Bleeker's question proved that he had been far more chivalrous than she had given him credit for being, and she despised herself for having doubted him. But Bleeker waited for no reply to his question.

"It's great for a lad like Jimmy to mix with people like these," he went on. "That boy's got everything Miss Treherne. You know how he can dance—you've seen him. But he can sing, too. And he's got personality like no one else. He was plugging along, doing a single, four and six times a day—you know, picture-vaudeville houses, dragging down $75, maybe $100 a week. And he comes to me for booking, and I let him have it straight. Single is punk. I tell him, get yourself a partner. I framed an act for him, and he got him a girl, and I was gonna get him booked. And then this chance at the Trebisond's joint comes along, and here he is, a big single, in spite of what I told him. It ain't often old man Bleeker is wrong, but this time I was, and I'm quick enough to admit it."

"No vaudeville stuff for Jimmy now. It's the talkies, him featured in a romantic-comic lead—then a Broadway show—it's a career, Miss Treherne, it's a career."

"You're proud of him, aren't you?"

"Like he was my own son, Miss

Treherne," said Bleeker. "Course, I'll make plenty dough off him, but I'd root for Jimmy, anyway. He's a swell kid. Give his last dime to any one—Well, like I was going to say, I'm glad to see him mixing in places like this. It does him good. Gets him the right kind of following and more than that—it gives him ease, accustoms him to the right sort of thing. Mostly he's been a lonesome kid, and I'm sure glad he's going to enjoy himself now. See-sh, he's gonna sing."

Jimmy had no voice, Julie recognized that fact instantly. But he had the indefinable knack of putting a song across.

She conceded, at once, that his career—provided his face and voice registered all right for the movies—was destined to be enormously successful. He had not overshot the mark last night when he said that he'd make a million in the next couple of years. And women, she suddenly realized, would do their utmost to spoil him.

She wondered that she had not seen his charm at once. She had liked him, respected him, and admired him for his decency. But she had not realized that he possessed so much charm.

And then she remembered that last night's kiss had not been the first he had given her. His lips had brushed hers as she lay unconscious in his apartment. And she had not been angry!

Could that have been because unconsciously she had known his charm? Oh, what were these futile thoughts? She loved Ralph Curson, Progressive 500 was played at three tables and high score award was received by Mrs. Harry Howell while consolation prize was awarded to Mrs. J. J. Behrens.

At the termination of the games the twelve guests were served a two course luncheon at three tables, which were prettily appointed in seasonal hues and having the Halloween idea expressed in the favors.

Mrs. Harry Howell will entertain the group at 7:45 Thursday evening, Nov. 5, at her home, 1021 Kansas street.

Social Gathering Held By Ladies' Aid

The monthly special meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church was held Thursday afternoon at the church parlors.

The time was spent informally. An entertaining game was supervised by Mrs. W. A. Hill who pasted the picture part of well known advertisements along the walls and permitted each member to guess what each represented.

Later in the afternoon the group gathered in the dining room and enjoyed refreshments at a long table having lighted gay colored tapers and Halloween appointments.

Hostesses for the occasion were: Mrs. W. J. Burnett, Mrs. Elizabeth Beatty, Mrs. A. J. Oliver and Mrs. W. A. Hill.

The next meeting is scheduled for the second Thursday in November.

Junior College Enjoys Social Affair

Thirty Junior college students were present this afternoon at the tea dance held at the play room of the Jefferson school house.

The room was decorated in Halloween array and at the refreshment hour the menu was carried out in seasonal hues.

Dancing preceded the tea hour and all arrangements were in charge of a special committee with Miss Jean Gray presiding as chairman.

Winter Evening Gown Has Trim Slim Waistline

By ALICE LANGELIER

PARIS—(INS)—A slim silhouette and a slimmer and trimmer waistline are Fashion's main ingredients for the winter evening gown.

Normally the waist is about where Nature intended it to be, but actually should be placed where it is and at the waist, either a little lower or a little higher. The essential point is for the waistline to look very small indeed and hipless, too, are kept down to an illusion of slenderness, no matter what their actual girth.

Schiaparelli puts the slimmest of waists on a formal evening frock of white peau d'ange satin with a big bow in the center back falling to a train which can be draped across the front and clipped to the waistline with a jewel. This makes it practical for dancing purposes. The bodice has twisted shoulder straps.

Long pinches in a ruby red velvet gown to make a slender and slinky silhouette with a close-fitting sheath to the knees where there is a circular flounce making a train in back. Two puffs hung from the back recall the 1880 bustle.

Nearly all evening gowns, at least the very formal ones, are backless or have a complicated arrangement of straps. There is the deep V-back and some of the designers have tried effects with a wide piece of the material crossing in folds from shoulder to shoulder allowing the back to be seen below. The very newest thing is to make the jewelry a part of the gown, letting the pendant hang from a band of the material.

Nearly 120,000 sheep and goatskins were shipped from Bahia, Brazil, to the United States in a recent month.

A railway connecting San Jose and Guanacaste, Costa Rica, is being promoted.

Monthly Meeting Held By Society

Reports were given and routine business was transacted at the regular monthly business meeting held Thursday afternoon by the Ladies' Aid of the United Brethren church.

Work was started on the calendars which are to be presented to each member of the society.

Committees for the chicken pie supper to be given Nov. 4 were appointed as follows: Dining room, Mrs. Charles Hankins and Mrs. Henry Hussen; flowers, Mrs. Anna Aulway and Mrs. Charles Eutsler; silver and linen, Mrs. Lillie Bates and Mrs. Phillipine Giesenhous; chicken pie, Mrs. Frank Kintzle, Mrs. Henry Nyenhuis and Mrs. Henry Pomero; gravy, Mrs. J. R. Meeker and Mrs. Julius Bodman; potatoes, Mrs. Charles Eutsler and Mrs. Martin Duto; peas, Mrs. Albert Orr and Mrs. J. H. Canarr; cranberries, Mrs. Martha Munn and Mrs. Ralph Schwerdtfeger; Kraut, Miss Clara Herwig; coffee, Mrs. Etta Vanatta.

DARE INTERPRETS the MODE

Schiaparelli fashions a swanky suit from novelty jersey, the coat red and green and the trouser-skirt brown and red, and fastens it smartly with S-shaped buttons. The blouse is dark red silk, slightly figured.

IF YOU'D attain the latest fashions in a hurry, take a train! Not just any kind of train, of course, but the right kind—the kind that spells chic for autumn evening wear!

For honestly, now, bustles have had their little day and subsided rather reluctantly to back-peplums, basques, don't we call them? And these back-peplums, usually of stiff material, or material artificially stiffened to hold them out with the proper air of jauntyness, have been getting longer and longer until they provide interesting and smart trains which are, above all, graceful! And as the bustle just wasn't graceful, no matter how you looked at it, and as the peplum shared the bustle's fault of bulkiness, we should be grateful indeed to the train, which is a charming adornment to the grace of the gown.

Apron trains which extend from the waist in a downward direction, fish-tail trains which sweep far out behind Miladi Moderne as she walks and spread at the end into a definite fish-tail-shaped fan, panel trains which extend from the shoulders in a stately and sweeping fashion, split trains which drape about the hips on either side and join at about the knees into one train, and side trains which trail on the floor on both sides—these are just some of the latest developments in train-land. 'N' they all share equally in an old-world glamourousness that's at once smart and becoming!

If there's one smart autumnal trick that Schiaparelli has missed in the creation of this swanky sports suit, I don't know what it is! You can see from my sketch that the suit consists of a plain short coat and a trouser-skirt, but it'll probably be news that the coat is of green and red novelty jersey, and the trouser-skirt of the same jersey.

only of brown and red! What with its interesting falling autumn leaf coloring, its smart tailoring and its gold S-shaped buttons, it has just about all the qualities necessary to make a success of autumn sports wear.

For that football game, for instance, wouldn't a chic, warm suit of this sort be a welcome change from the all too present fur coat idea?

And lest we forget that blouse—it's of dark red silk, lightly figured, the front and sleeves being cut in one piece, and with a scarf-neck arrangement which informal-ity.

Au revoir!

Cream 1-4 cup butter; add 1 cup sugar and the beaten yolks of 2 eggs and beat until very light. Stir this into the first mixture alternately with 1 cup milk, flavor with 1 teaspoon vanilla, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of 3 eggs and more flour to make stiff enough to roll, cut into oblongs, fry in deep fat, drain and roll in powdered sugar.

Beat up an egg, add slowly to mixture, mix with hand and beat it well. Do not have mixture too soft or cakes will fall to pieces in cooking. The consistency of a dough is about right, so it is well to add beaten egg slowly. You may not need it all. Let mixture stand in ice chest a few hours if possible. Drop from spoon into very hot fat; cook rapidly.

4 BLOCKS APART

By Arthur Somers Roche

SYNOPSIS

Jimmy Farrell, Broadway "hoof-er," rescues a beautiful girl suffering from amnesia. Davenport Rayne, petty racketeer, recognizes her in Jimmy's bachelor apartment as Julie Treherne, society girl, and suggests that they blackmail her millionaire father. Jimmy knocks him down and Rayne plans to get even.

Two weeks later Julie agrees to marry Ralph Curzon, a man of her own social standing. Together they go to the Trebizon Night Club, where Jimmy Farrell has just been taken on as substitute entertainer. Julie overhears Rayne plotting with three men to "get" Jimmy as he dances. To forestall them she does a feature dance with him.

The next evening, at a private party, Jimmy again appears as entertainer, and the orchestra leader calls on Julie to dance with him once more. This time he finishes the dance with a kiss, and declares he is going to try to win Julie for his wife. Ralph is furiously jealous, and partly to plague him Julie accepts the invitation of Dolly Wanders, her best friend, to tea next day. She has just told Jimmy that he may see her home that afternoon when a fat, over-dressed man speaks to her.

CHAPTER XVIII
It Couldn't Be Love

NAMES BLEEKER," he said, "and I guess you're Miss Treherne, ain't you?"

"That was certainly a wonderful thing you did at the Trebizon that other night, Miss Treherne. I'm Farrell's manager. How come you happened to know a hoof-er like him? I didn't know Jimmy ever done any stepping around to places like this."

He indicated the room and its people with a gesture of his cigar. Julie colored from an inner feeling of shame.

Deep down inside she knew that she had been afraid all along that Jimmy would tell his intimates of her night at his apartment.

Bleeker's question proved that he had been far more chivalrous than she had given him credit for being, and she despised herself for having doubted him. But Bleeker waited for no reply to his question.

"It's great for a lad like Jimmy to mix with people like these," he went on. "That boy's got everything Miss Treherne. You know how he can dance—you've seen him. But he can sing, too. And he's got personality like no one else. He was plugging along, doing a single, four and six times a day you know, picture-vaudeville houses, dragging down $75, maybe $100 a week. And he comes to me for booking, and I let him have it straight. Single is punk, I tell him. Get yourself a partner, I framed an act for him, and he got him a girl, and I was gonna get him booking. And then this chance at the Trebizon's joint comes along, and here he is, a big single, in spite of what I told him. It ain't often old man Bleeker is wrong, but this time I was, and I'm quick enough to admit it."

"No vaudeville stuff for Jimmy now. It's the talkies, him featured in a romantic-comic lead—then a Broadway show—it's a career, Miss Treherne, it's a career."

"You're proud of him, aren't you?" asked Julie.

"Like he was my own son, Miss

Treherne," said Bleeker. "Course, I'll make plenty

As We See It

The Facts Behind the Trouble in Des Moines County

The law-abiding character of the farmers of Iowa under extreme provocation was strikingly illustrated by events near Burlington in Des Moines county in connection with the efforts of Governor Turner to vaccinate the cows at the point of the bayonet.

Realizing that their cows were about to be forcibly tested and knowing, as all farmers that have had any experience with the test know, that they were about to be subjected to the risk of great losses of healthy cattle from the test, large numbers gathered at the farm of Jake Eversman to resist the test.

Reports circulated by the reactionary press that the farmers had armed in great force and would resort to violence, were enough to cause our brave governor to haul 1,300 troops into Des Moines county, prepare 1,700 more for immediate duty and mobilize 12,000 in the various barracks throughout the state. It was a grand and heroic display of long distance heroism.

It has turned out that the governor's extreme measures, which inflamed the farmers all over the state and increased the difficulties, were wholly unjustified. A few hotheads carried arms to the Eversman farm, but they were promptly disarmed by the farmer leaders, their guns were cached, and they were informed that they would not get their arms back until the trouble was over. There has never been any intention on the part of the farmer leaders to resort to armed resistance. The most elementary examination of the situation by our heroic governor or his brave state officials would have convinced them that there was no occasion to resort to their extreme and costly war measures, which the taxpayers of Iowa will have to pay for. But Governor Turner and his subordinates preferred to conduct a long distance war with 12,000 troops with themselves safely in the background.

Not only did the leaders of the protesting farmers at the Eversman farm promptly disarm all those who carried guns, but they asked all curious spectators at the farm to disperse and go home so that all trouble might be avoided. This order was obeyed, as the following news dispatch from Burlington shows:

BURLINGTON, Ia.—(Special)—Because of the presence of individuals who were not in any way connected with the opposition to the compulsory testing of cattle for tuberculosis, and the activities of bootleggers, it was thought best by Des Moines county farm leaders to ask the crowd which had gathered at the Jacob Eversman farm to disperse. The crowd broke up about 3 a. m. this morning. This move was thought best by the leaders inasmuch as they feared action of which the farmers did not approve, might be taken by some of the "outsiders."

The final act of the farmers, showing conclusively that they had never planned armed resistance, was their announcement by unanimous agreement that armed resistance had never been contemplated, but only passive resistance. The farmers were unanimous for a plan to resort only to political action, to obtain redress for their grievance and place their cause before the voters of Iowa.

The conduct of the majority of the newspapers throughout the state in the midst of this situation calls for utmost condemnation by all decent citizens. Highly exaggerated accounts topped by most inflammatory headlines, describing an armed rebellion of farmers in Des Moines county appeared in many papers. We wonder whether or not it is just sheer love of sensationalism, or general irresponsibility, or pressure from the big business or reactionary interests they serve, or just plain hatred of the farmers, that causes these newspapers to print such false and inflammatory matter—matter so calculated to deceive the public, injure the farmers and increase the trouble. And again we wonder if Governor Turner gets all his advice from this poisoned source and blindly follows it like a puppet in a Punch and Judy show.

The farmers of Des Moines county chose wisely when they chose to resort to political action in the future to right the great wrong from which they suffer. This is the safe, sure and proper course for the farmers of the entire state. While it will not stop tuberculosis testing and loss of healthy cattle for the present, it will in the end wipe the present iniquitous and outrageous law from the statute books and put a law in its place that will really locate tuberculous cattle without destroying healthy cattle, and will fully protect the public without bankrupting the farmers.

The farmers ought to start now to organize politically for the next state election so that they will be fully prepared when the time comes to endorse and back up a full set of state and legislative candidates from the governor down who will pledge themselves, and can be depended upon, to wipe the present T. B. law from the statute books and put in its place a good and effective test like the milk test.

Speaking of Callouses

A great many people seem to be suffering from callouses during these strenuous times.

We have noted that some men have callouses on their hands from too much pick and shovel; some are suffering from callouses on their feet from looking for jobs; some have callouses on their sides from leaning against walls and lamp posts; some have extensive body callouses from lying in bed too late in the morning, while others have callouses caused by sitting down too much.

We have seen men and women with callouses on their tongues from talking too much, but we have yet the first person to meet with callouses on the brain from too much thinking.

But speaking about callouses reminds us that we have observed a widely prevalent callous we have never been able to explain. It occurs on the right thumb of a great many Iowans and other residents of the middle west. Will somebody kindly explain?

It is all right if, like a good sheep, you remain in one or the other of the old political parties and vote to sustain this intolerable PLUNDERBUND and DICTATORSHIP. They will pat you on the back and call you a free and sovereign American citizen and you will be fool enough to believe it. But just get into any of the minor political parties calculated to put these PLUNDERERS and WOULD BE DICTATORS in their places, and see what will happen to you.

What is to become of the "rugged individualism" and "individual initiative" of the bankers, if Hoover gives them a dole?

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

By LILLIAN M. MITCHELL

Because the cover was red and had a design showing Eve on tiptoe before the apple tree with Adam standing beside her, Don Garvey bought the dream book for his fiancée, Eve Crowley.

Little could he guess that a pet hippo in a foldup would have been a happier gift! When Don slept, he slept. Probably he had not had a dozen dreams in all of his life. Eve Crowley, on the other hand, dreamed every night. Every morning she explained her dreams in great detail at the breakfast table to a weary family. Eve was constantly wondering what her dreams meant. When she told Don about her dreams and asked him what they meant, Don thought it was tantamount to asking his advice. He was highly flattered.

Within twenty-four hours of receiving the gift of the dream book, Eve had read it from cover to cover. She could tell the meaning of any dream from apricots to zebras with a fluency that amazed strongly of memory work. Now she not only told her dreams at the family breakfast table but she interpreted them to walk.

It amazed Don, during his forty-five minute luncheon periods (during which they were selecting the furniture for their future home) that any girl could have so many varied dreams.

"I just love the little dream book," she would say, clinging to his arm and looking up into his eyes adoringly.

"And me," he would ask with pretended jealousy. "I guess yes! She would murmur joyously. "Oh, Donnie! It just can't be forty-five minutes already."

But it was. Even if he was in love with pretty little Eve Crowley, Don Garvey used hard sense enough to get back to his office on time. He had a very good reason now for holding down his job.

The Saturday on which they were to be married arrived. As usual, Don went to the office and, as well as could be expected under the circumstances, stood the jokes of the fellows at 10 o'clock the switchboard girl told him he was wanted on the wire.

"I-I-c-can't marry you to-night, Donnie," said Eve's tearful voice over the wire.

"Wh-what?" he demanded incredulously. "What's the matter?" "I-I dreamed last night that there was an owl in our new apartment and that he was eating fairly gobbling—sour apples. Sour ones, Donnie!" her voice rose on this last.

"Well, what of it?" he asked impatiently. He glanced about to see if any of the fellows were listening to the call.

"Well," said Eve slowly, "you know what it says in the dream book about that."

He made a small muttering exclamation of denial.

"Why," the dream book you gave me," she continued. "It says an apartment means sadness or sorrow and a sour apple means sedition, quarrels, disdain, anger and fighting. Oh, I just couldn't bear it if you ever threatened me, Donnie. It's better not to get married at all."

He started to argue the matter but thought better of it. "And the owl," he asked, trying to keep his voice level. "And where does the owl come in?" he asked, omitting, with effort the adjectives he thought suitable to the owl.

"Bad success in immediate understanding," she said glibly. He uttered something. "Now listen, Eve. You just wait until I can get down there and talk everything over. I'll be there by 1:30."

At 1:05 he was in the book shop. "Two copies of 'Dalzonetti's Dream Book,'" he told the clerk. "And a bottle of glue."

Using the near-by desk for five minutes, he hurried to the bus.

"Take off your coat," Eve said to him.

He shrugged closer into his loose gray topcoat and felt his deep pocket with a grin. "Can't stop," he told her engagingly. "I got a date to get married tonight, Eve."

She shook her head, unsmilingly. "Let's have a look at that dream book," he said.

She took it from beneath a pile of magazines.

"Doesn't look as if you'd had it out today," he chided.

"Oh, I know it by heart. I don't need to look at it. . . oh, bother. I'll have to answer that doorbell. Donnie. Just a minute."

"Take your time," he told her affably.

The instant she was gone he took the dream book and dropped it into one pocket. From the other pocket he took another dream book and opened it to make sure it was the right one. When Eve returned he said:

"Now, what's this about the owl? I find that it says he: 'Owl! city near at hand, good times. That's what it says after owl, Eve.'"

"That's the ox-eye reading," she told him.

"Go on, I can read," he laughed. "You learned 'em wrong way. That's what you did. Here, read it for yourself."

She looked over his shoulder. He still held it in his hands.

"Hold it higher where I can see it—oh, Donnie, darling. What do you think of that? I must have tripped over them."

He found himself in a stinging embrace. "Here, I'll drop the dream book in my pocket, eh? You may want it on the honeymoon."

Ten minutes later a pretty little colored girl paused at a large mailbox for packages. There, invitingly, lay three crimson books entitled "Dalzonetti Dream Book."

"Three copies, too," she smiled. "One for Cora Belle and one for me and one for Georgiana Washington—now, I wonder," she said as she flipped open one book, "who cut out what it said after ox in this one?"

Pondering this matter she went in search of Cora Belle and Georgiana Washington.

PETER RABBIT WORRIES ABOUT OLD MR. TOAD

When Peter Rabbit finally bled Old Mr. Toad good night and left him there at the bottom of the great pit which Farmer Brown's boy had dug in a corner of his garden and into which Old Mr. Toad had fallen, he was a little like the Indian and buffalo he is doomed to disappear.

The American Medical Trust and Meat Trust will complete his economic destruction by poisoning his cows and destroying the dairy industry, after which, if he remains as credulous as in the past, they will poison him and his family by compulsory vaccination and the forced acceptance of State Medicine with all its horrors of poison for PROFIT.

The farmer's dream of great land ownership has terminated in a nightmare that gives him a bad taste in his mouth the morning after.

What he mistakes for a "depression" is but the beginning cycle of the universal collapse of capitalism! This will become more apparent as one basic industry after another crumbles to the dust.

By 1935 United States capitalism will have taken the count, and the dispossessed farmer, foreclosed by the sheriff, will be in the ranks of the jobless wage slaves, and, with a proletarian psychology, join millions of workers in abolishing the political state and organizing the Socialist Industrial Republic.

I cannot refrain from the question: what is the matter with farmers who do not inform their sons that the militia is but one of the strong arms of capitalism which is always used against LABOR the farmers?

DR. A. S. DOWLER, Glendale, Calif.

Jay have been around when he was wanted? Peter was actually beginning to feel that it was really Sammy's fault, when of course it wasn't anything of the kind. "Any-way, as soon as I've had a bite to eat I'll run over to the garden and tell Mr. Toad that I have been trying my very best to do something for him. I hope he hasn't suffered very much, but I'm almost afraid to go see." You know Peter is very tender hearted.

So Peter ate a hurried meal and shortly after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills Peter started to see how Old Mr. Toad was feeling after that long hot day at the bottom of that great hole.

(Copyright, 1931, by T. W. Burgess)

Meanwhile he worried about Old Mr. Toad. He knew that Mr. Toad does not like the hot sun. In fact it makes him quite ill. Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had been shining his very brightest all that day.

"It must have been awfully hot down in that pit, thought Peter. "Poor Old Mr. Toad must have suffered a great deal. And he must be hungry. How ever will he get anything to eat down there? I am afraid that if he has to spend another day down there it will quite finish him. Why couldn't Sammy

Neither the Baker plan nor any other can or will rehabilitate the American farmer. As an individual agrarian his race is run, and like the Indian and buffalo he is doomed to disappear.

Give It A Thought

By Joseph A. Sadony

Don't try to think with your brain when that brain is not normal. Causing thoughts not normal. Is it not like a tired body which cannot raise an arm?

Why expect a tired brain to do more. Surely you ought to know when a straight line is made crooked. As well as when a circle is made straight.

And realize that if you know the difference. The KNOWING is proof of an inborn, independent justice. A knowledge of a moral law. A conscience of set rule, wrong and right, top or bottom, cold or hot.

Our own law of cause and effect adjusts our judgment. As to what is the cause, and what is the effect.

Whether standing on our feet, or walking on our hands.

There is no better human barometer of life. Than to be constantly in company with a little child, and an aged person.

A reminder of the past, (the baby); The present, (yourself); And the future, (the aged one); That length of your outstretched hands.

A rule to measure your territory. Keeping you mindful of the purpose of life.

How much time. How long a journey to make. And what chances you have; The foundation, (the cradle); The roof, (the grave).

But it was only the house of the soul. Which you have given to progress to higher achievements.

Like steps to Eternity.

COFFEE RECORD IN HAWAII (HONOLULU)—(INS) — Another world record is claimed for Hawaii with the announcement that the Kona district of Hawaii island has averaged 1,800 pounds of coffee per acre during the production season just ended. This is 3.88 pounds per tree and according to University of Hawaii experts it exceeds by two or three times the average production of many prominent coffee growing countries. The 1930-31 crop exceeded ten million pounds for the first time in Hawaiian history.

MUSKIES AND FT. MADISON TO CLASH HERE TONIGHT

Wildcats Will Meet Ohio In Crucial Game

Victor May Emerge as 1931 Champion of Big Ten Loop

By WEST PETERSON
INS Sports Writer

CHICAGO—Two Big Ten football squads were descending upon the city of Pennsylvania today while the remaining members of the conference prepared to kick the pigskin around on their home lots.

Tomorrow's crucial game will be played by Ohio and Northwestern at Columbus. The winner of this contest may emerge as 1931 champion.

Minnesota is to make its seasonal conference debut on the home grounds against Iowa. The Cornhuskers will play Chicago at Chicago, Michigan at Illinois at Urbana, Wisconsin at Penn. at Philadelphia, and Purdue at West Lafayette, Pa.

The powerful eleven of Notre Dame plays Pittsburgh on the home field at South Bend.

Buckeyes Given Edge

Because of the Wildcats' swollen hospital list, Ohio was today expected to have an edge in the Columbus fracas. Oliver Olson, punter, Red Russell, backfield flash, and Ken Meenan, another ground-gaining ace, are among the Purple cripples. However, Olson and Meenan may be able to see some action.

Both teams have previously demonstrated strength this year. Northwestern by holding Notre Dame scoreless and Ohio by upsetting the highly-touted Michigan contingent last Saturday.

Although its early season record left much to be desired, Minnesota had the odds to take the measure of the Hawkeyes. The best Iowa was able to do against Indiana netted a scoreless tie. The Gophers were watched closely in this contest, for they may develop as real title contenders despite the poor showing made to date.

Homecoming At Illinois

A big crowd of homecomers will see the Michigan-Illinois conflict on the latter's field. The Illini will have to work hard to produce a victory for the old grads, according to all indications. The Wolverines were rated as potent title contenders until they lost to Ohio.

Indiana and Chicago are considered fairly evenly matched. Both have suffered defeats which place them in the conference's "weak sister" classification.

Carnegie Tech's players have shown up well in practices this week, and they have a good chance to beat Purdue's Boilermakers.

NO PLAYOFF OF SCORELESS TIE

Notre Dame Unwilling To Indicate Result Was Accident

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—(INS)—There will be no playoff this season between Northwestern and Notre Dame, the two football teams that battled to a scoreless tie in Chicago's Soldier field.

This much was certain today as the result of a statement by Father O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, affirming his school's willingness to participate in another charity game, but declining to have Northwestern as the opponent.

Father O'Donnell and other school authorities expressed the belief that Notre Dame's willingness to play another game with Northwestern would indicate a presumption that the scoreless tie was an accident.

American Loop May Adopt "Dead Ball" For Use Next Year

NEW YORK—(INS)—Likelihood that the American League will adopt the National League's "dead ball" was increased today by the announcement of Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, that he would not object to the change.

William Harridge, president of the junior circuit, is contemplating such action.

LOU BROUILLARD FAVORED TO WIN CHAMP'S CROWN

Young Jack Thompson Expected to Lose To Challenger

By GENE K. LORICK
INS Staff Correspondent

BOSTON—The fistic spotlight of a world's championship bout is turned upon Boston tonight for the first time in a decade as Young Jack Thompson, Chicago negro, defends his welterweight crown at Boston Garden against a clever, more youthful challenger, Lou Brouillard, of Worcester and Danielson, Conn.

Besides being the first title scrap in the hub of eleven years, it marks the first 15-round bout ever held in this city. Legislation allowing fifteen round title bouts in Massachusetts recently went into effect.

On the basis of the challenger's 10-round decision over the "champ" in a non-title fight some months ago, the "smart money" here was quoted at 5 to 3 for the crown to change hands.

In the event of a Brouillard victory it will be the fifth jump the crown has taken in the past few years. Thompson originally won the title from Jackie Fields, but lost it to Tommy Freeman in Chicago. A little later, he won it back by a knockout in Cleveland, being one of the few ex-champions to "come back." The switching started when Joe Dundee lost to Fields.

Tremendous interest was focused on the fight, due to the 22-year-old challenger's meteoric rise to fistic greatness. Less than a year ago he was known as a "comer." But not until he so decisively defeated Al Mello, New England welterweight champion, did Brouillard gain national recognition. "Larrup in Lou" continued his winning surge by defeating Thompson, taking each of the ten rounds.

GREENBUSH SET FOR CARDINALS

Some 3,000 Football Fans Expected at Sunday Game

ROCK ISLAND, Ill.—(Special)—With moderate temperature and clear skies predicted, the Greenbush gridders are ready to handle the biggest crowd of the season Sunday at 2:15 o'clock when they encounter the powerful Chicago Cardinals, second ranking club in the National Pro grid league.

Seats which went on sale Monday have been in great demand and it is believed that 3,000 will watch Ernie Nevers and other All-Americans pit their strength against the cream of the tri-city independent gridders.

General admission tickets purchased before the game are selling at 75 cents but will be boosted to 25 cents at the gate. Reservations are 50 cents extra.

Those wishing tickets can procure them by writing M. H. Scheuerman, manager of Greenbush, Safety Building, Rock Island. Fans from Muscatine, Clinton, Galesburg, Keosauqua, Monmouth and Iowa City already have ordered tickets and other cities will likely be represented at the game.

Barry Wood of Harvard is going to be a ball carrier this fall. In seasons past he has confined his work to passing and kicking.

home run hitting because he was paying Babe Ruth $50,000 a year to hit the ball out of the lot. Ruth's contract at that figure has now expired.

Can Northwestern Stop These Two Ohio State Stars?

Marshall Oliphant, (left), one of Ohio State's outstanding sophomore backs, and Carl Cramer, sophomore quarterback of the Buckeyes, are two of the stars Northwestern will have to stop Saturday at Columbus if the Wildcats are to remain out in front in the Big Ten title race. Oliphant has been out of the lineup with injuries but is expected to return for the Northwestern game. Cramer is the "man of the hour" following the Buckeye victory over the University of Michigan last Saturday.

IOWA AT FULL STRENGTH NOW

Hawks in Good Shape For Gopher Battle At Minneapolis

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS)—Thirty-three members of the University of Iowa football squad entrained here early this morning for Minneapolis, where they will work out today before encountering the thundering herd there Saturday.

The Hawkeyes have spent the last two days in an attempt to polish their aerial attack, which has been traditionally weak on old grid teams in recent years. The Gophers are noted for their aerial forays, and Iowa will attempt to beat them at their own game.

The Iowa team is at full strength this week-end for the first time this season. A slight back injury sustained by Kriz, halfback, will not hamper his work against Minnesota, and the weak ankle of Hickman, the other halfback, has now healed.

OXYGEN PUMPED TO DYING FISH

New Methods Used in Iowa Fish Rescue Work Explained

(Fish and Game Service)

LANSING—(Special)—Describing the new air method, by which fish imprisoned beneath the ice in the many shallow lakes and ponds over Iowa during the winter season, are supplied with oxygen, through a special piece of pumping machinery, in order that they may survive, Ves Baur, fish culturist for the state fish and game commission, said that this winter would be the second year that this method had been employed in fish rescue work in Iowa.

Old Method Not Good

While this particular method is new, for some years oxygen has been furnished fish during the winter months by pumping water from one hole into another, thus creating bubbles containing oxygen as a natural sequence. But the process has never been satisfactory. Oxygen tests were made last year for the first time.

Under the new process, not only will these tests be made, but in preparation for this work Mr. Baur says that five men from the fish and game department have been given thorough training by the state board of health in making these tests. These men will be assigned certain territory through the winter whenever there is a necessity for it.

Twenty Lakes Effected

Some twenty Iowa lakes will be looked after by these men. Each lake will undergo a test and if found deficient in oxygen content the work of pumping this oxygen down to the bottom of the lake bed, or within reach of the fish, will start. A fifty-foot hose with other new apparatus is used. Lakes which will be taken care of are: Manawa, Blue, Brown, Twin (Rockwell City), Wall, Twin (Goodell), Crystal, Eagle, Medium, Silver (Lake Park), Silver (Ayrshire), Tuttle, Iowa.

Not only will the bigger lakes be safeguarded, but the nursery lakes in various parts of the state will undergo the same treatment. These lakes will all be checked once each week, or in some cases twice each week in the case of those which may be especially in need of it.

Coch Paul Schissler of Oregon States has shifted Snowy Guslaton, letter man at end, to the full-back position.

Union has a veteran team under a new coach this year. G. Elliot Hatfield has charge of the squad.

MUSKY HARRIER TEAM IN SLUMP

Coach Hunn's Stars Handicapped for Race Saturday

Injury and sickness may prevent the Little Musky cross country team from winning the second invitational harrier meet at the Weed park course Saturday afternoon in which nine other teams are entered. Coach Leonard E. Hunn reports that several of his most promising runners have been running in a slump this week are not showing the right form due to injuries and sickness.

Harold Olson is rounding into shape nicely after being out of the early meets this season because of sickness. Warren King, who won first place in one meet and tied for first in the other, has been handicapped this week because of sickness as has Richard Higginson.

Capt. John Wilson is in just fair shape but should turn in a good race. However, all members of the team are expected to round in their usual form by Saturday afternoon and put enough effort into their running to break the tape in another victory for the Hunnmen.

Coach Hunn announced Thursday that he has no idea just who he will start but it will be five of the following eight: Capt. John Wilson, Warren King, Richard Higginson, Harold Olson, Hubert Tipton, Gene Gains, Gerald Wyman and Henry Lange.

A meet for the eighteen other freshmen and sophomore wildcats who will not run Saturday, will be held at the Weed park course this afternoon. Coach Hunn announced. All these runners are practically new at the game and are showing plenty of signs of development and should develop into some valuable material for future teams.

Johnston Will Ask Commish to Approve Carnera-Uzcudun Go

NEW YORK—(INS)—At today's meeting of the New York boxing commission James J. Johnston, new general manager of Madison Square Garden, will attempt to persuade the board to approve the Primo Carnera-Paulino Uzcudun bout at the Garden on Nov. 13 as originally scheduled. Commissioner William Muldoon recently barred the match on the ground that Carnera "was too big for Paulino."

Promoters in Chicago and Cleveland are eager to stage the bout.

A. C. TEAM TO BATTLE LOCALS

Big Muskies to Play Valley Junction There Sunday

Sixteen Big Musky gridders will leave Muscatine at 6:30 Sunday morning for Valley Junction where they will battle the powerful Valley Junction Athletic club football team Sunday afternoon. The game will be the fifth of the season for the locals. Although they have not won all four games already played they have lost only one and are in good shape.

Word received here from the Valley camp indicates that tough contest is in store for the Muskies as the Valley team hasn't been defeated this season. No team has crossed the Valley goal line and all opponents have met defeat by one-sided scores.

On the other hand Manager Frank Honts reports that his men are anxious to turn in a victory over the Valley team and will be at full strength. A large delegation of local followers are expected to accompany the team on the trip and help spur the team on to victory.

Last season the Big Muskies defeated the Valley team in a close battle through the great punting of Buddy Flake. Flake is expected to be in uniform again this Sunday although he has been suffering with a bad shoulder injury.

Late Dope on Midwest Teams

COLUMBUS, O.—(INS)—Northwestern's football squad of 35 players and coaches arrived here today for tomorrow's important game between the Wildcats and Ohio State. It was announced that Ken Meenan, George Peiter and "Pug" Rentner will be in the Purple backfield, with Oliver Olson probably replaced by Al Moore.

An atmosphere of confidence prevailed in the Buckeye camp on the eve of the game. Defensive tactics were stressed in light practice by the Ohioans yesterday.

CHICAGO—(INS)—The Maroons took only a light workout today in anticipation of the Chicago-Indiana game tomorrow. Coach A. Stagg was reported prepared to employ the new shift formation against the Hoosiers.

NOTRE DAME, Ind.—(INS)—Coach Hunk Anderson today called a meeting of Notre Dame quarterbacks reminiscent of the days of Knute Rockne. The Irish field generals were to study blackboard charts of plays to be used against the Pittsburgh Panthers here Saturday.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(INS)—With most of the regulars on the list of cripples, Purdue's football squad was enroute east today, bound for Pittsburgh where Saturday the Boilermakers clash with Carnegie Tech. A new backfield, composed of Sophomores, will consist of Hecker, Moore, Kurts and Pardonner.

MADISON, Wis.—(INS)—Three Big Badger teams comprised Wisconsin's Molekin army which today was launched on its invasion of Philadelphia, where it will wage battle against Pennsylvania Saturday.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(INS)—Illinois' football hopes suffered another blow today with the announcement that Glick, husky sophomore line-man, will be out of the game with Michigan here Saturday. Coach Robert Zuppke yesterday put his disciples through a stiff scrimmage. Today the Illini are scheduled to undergo a signal drill.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(INS)—It was estimated today that only 25,000 fans will view Minnesota's Big Ten opener here tomorrow with Iowa. In the past, an Iowa-Minnesota game has usually drawn 40,000 to the stadium. The Hawkeyes arrived here this morning.

CHICAGO—(INS)—The Michigan football squad, enroute to play tomorrow at the University of Illinois, was scheduled to go through a workout at Stagg field here this afternoon. Coach Harry Kipke and 33 players comprised the squad.

ANNAPOLIS—(INS)—Navy and Notre Dame elevens may play in Cleveland in 1932. It was reported here today. The clash had been scheduled for Chicago but it was understood a switch would be made to Cleveland. No official announcement was expected for several days.

Drake Goes East for Battle With Strong Fordham Crew

DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—Missouri Valley conference schools will continue this weekend their hostilities against outside foes in an effort to better their record of 14 wins and 6 losses against non-conference schools.

Two contests will be held in St. Louis. Grinnell, unbeaten as yet, will travel there to meet the strong St. Louis university team, while Washington takes on the powerful Centre college eleven.

The Oklahoma Aggies who last Saturday showed surprising strength in defeating the Haskell Indians 39 to 0 will play Oklahoma City university at Oklahoma City Friday night. The Aggies should average the 6 to 0 loss handed them by Oklahoma City U. last year.

Creighton at Tulsa

Creighton who last Saturday spotted Washington's hopes of a conference championship by trouncing them 40 to 0 will invade Tulsa where they meet Tulsa university on Saturday afternoon.

Drake will take a revamped lineup to New York to play the Fordham university outfit. The Bulldogs, badly battered as the result of the 63 to 0 lacing administered them by Notre Dame, will be minus the services of Billy Goodwin, star quarterback, who broke his leg in the fray. Several linemen also injured may not be in the starting lineup.

Grinnell's Record Best

To date Grinnell has the best record in the conference, having won three victories without having been scored upon. The Oklahoma Aggies have defeated four strong opponents including Arizona and Haskell, to hang up a record of four wins and a single loss, that to Minnesota.

Creighton claims a trio of victories against a lone defeat by Drake while the Bulldogs have won twice and lost to Notre Dame. Washington has broke even in four contests.

HERE'S NUMBERS FOR MUSKIES FOR TONIGHT'S GAME

So as to make it easy for Little Musky fans to identify the exact local player who has just broken through to spill some Fort Madison backfield man for a big loss or a back who has just completed a long run, the numbers which will appear on the backs of the player's jerseys tonight are listed below. Following are the numbers, players and positions they play:

- 21—Guessegren, backfield.
- 22—Mills, backfield.
- 23—Heard, backfield.
- 24—E. Lee, end.
- 25—Minder, backfield.
- 26—Capt. Utley, backfield.
- 27—Worst, guard.
- 28—Luis, end.
- 29—Othmer, end.
- 30—Dillon, backfield.
- 31—Nugent, backfield.
- 32—Pallacheck, tackle.
- 33—Weber, backfield.
- 34—Butts, tackle.
- 35—Hurst, center.
- 36—Slack, guard.
- 37—Schwandke, center.
- 38—M. Lee, tackle.

Cleveland May Get Navy-Irish Battle

ANNAPOLIS—(INS)—Navy and Notre Dame elevens may play in Cleveland in 1932. It was reported here today. The clash had been scheduled for Chicago but it was understood a switch would be made to Cleveland. No official announcement was expected for several days.

Big Crowd Expected To Urge Locals on To Victory

Two evenly matched high school football teams will battle here tonight on a wet and slippery gridiron and probably in a drizzle of rain. This was the weather outlook this morning for the important "Dad's Day" contest under the floodlights at Jefferson field between the Little Muskies and Fort Madison.

Despite these conditions a large crowd is expected to be on hand to help send the Kinnamen off to their first "Dad's Day" victory. The game will also be a "Booster" affair as all proceeds taken in over expense will go toward payment of the lights.

Former Gridders Invited

An old time grid atmosphere will surround the bleachers tonight as many of past season's local high grid letter men will attend the game. All of these old letter men have been invited to attend by A. W. Johnson, athletic director at the high school.

An added incentive for the Little Muskies to play tonight's game is the fact that J. W. Creamer, manager of the Palace theater, will admit all members of the A. and B. squads to the Fox Palace theater Saturday night if the team turns in a victory over the visiting aggregation.

Two Muskies Out

The locals will be ready to shoot the works, Coach Kinnan indicated in his short workout Thursday afternoon. The team looks greatly improved as a whole and should work together much smoother. Two linemen will be on the bench with injuries and it is unlikely that they will see service at any time during the game. They are Clifford Worst, guard, and John Brookway, tackle. Both are suffering with knee injuries.

It was learned Thursday that "Long John" Barko, lanky wingman, had pulled Willie Hester, Jr., and quit football. Barko gave his reasons for quitting as illness and an injured knee. Coach Kinnan did not work Barko hard at any time while out for practice earlier this season as he wasn't going to take any chances of the basketball flash getting hurt and preventing him from leading the Little Musky cagers through the first half year. Barko is captain of the basketball team this year.

Probable Starting Lineup

Although Coach Kinnan would give no intentions of a starting lineup it is probable that the following will start: Luis and Lee at the ends; Slack and M. Lee at the tackles; Hest and Capt. Utley at the guards; Schwandke at center; Minder at quarterback; Heerd and Guessegren at the halfbacks and either Ed Dillon or Leo Nugent at fullback.

Other Little Six teams engaging in contests tonight are Washington, Fairfield and Ottumwa. Washington will meet the strong Winfield team at Case field while Fairfield will battle Ottumwa in the only loop contest this week. The game will be the first of the conference season for the Trojans.

Burlington is idle this week with Mt. Pleasant tackling the somewhat smaller and less experienced New London team on the latter's gridiron.

What the football coaches want are men who'll fight and live for dear old Siwash.

Wrestling is a much more intimate game than boxing, especially the boxing we've been having.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS

by John Hix

The sun is closest to the earth in January, and at its greatest distance from the earth, in July. Winter is colder than summer because the sun's rays are not as direct. The seasons are caused by the inclination of the earth's axis. In winter, the Northern Hemisphere is tilted away from the sun, so that the rays have to penetrate a greater amount of atmosphere. In summer, the Northern Hemisphere is tilted toward the sun so that although the sun is farther away at that time, it is more directly overhead. Thus, when it is summer in the Northern Hemisphere, it is winter in the Southern Hemisphere, and vice versa.

Silk hose are one-third TIN, as far as weight is concerned. In raw state, silk is yellow, and has a harsh feeling caused by a gummy substance with which the silk is covered. When this gummy substance is removed, the fiber loses about one-third of its weight. To bring the silk back to its original weight, it is "loaded" with tin phosphate. Most of the tin used for the loading process, is obtained from old tin cans.

ELK CITY, OKLA. HAS HOSPITAL FARMERS BUILT

Plan of Dr. Shadid Is Seen as National Development

ELK CITY, Okla. (Special)—A hospital that is neither a hospital for the making of profits, nor a charitable institution, but which is a co-operative hospital, owned by 2,000 farmers in western Oklahoma county, was dedicated to 3,000 persons from all over western Oklahoma attending. According to Dr. M. Shadid of Elk City, the founder of the Co-Operative Health Association, the hospital is the first of its kind in the United States.

The building is a fireproof structure and contains the most up-to-date hospital equipment it is possible to buy. Not only is it equipped as well as some of the big hospitals, but better than some. It has been constructed in an eight-acre tract in the outskirts of Elk City.

Returns on Investment
In his dedicatory address, Dr. Shadid explained why such an institution was needed. He pointed out that a profit-making hospital, by its very nature, is designed not only to heal, but to bring a return on its investment. He described "charity" as a substitute for justice, and charity hospitals in some ways are as objectionable as profit-making hospitals.

Dr. Shadid's point regarding the purpose of private hospitals, was illustrated in a talk by Oscar Amersinger, editor of the American Guardian. He knew two famous surgeons at Columbus, O. One of them charged high fees, and the other low. It was noticed that the patients of the high fee doctors were released from the hospital in a very short time, while the surgeon who charged low fees kept them in bed for a much longer time.

Doctors Got "Thems"
A great light dawned on one day, Dr. Shadid said, when he noticed that Mr. High Fee Surgeon had a hospital with only 27 beds, and that was the reason he charged big and knotted them out in a hurry to make room for the next one. But Mr. Low Fee Surgeon, he had a 250-room hospital, and he charged low for the same service. Both of them got theirs—all the traffic would bear.

President John Simpson and the National Farmers Union said that three-fourths of the members of the hospital association were also members of the Farmers Union, and that the lessons of co-operation learned in his organization had, no doubt, made Dr. Shadid's task of organizing the hospital association possible. He told of the fight which the doctors were making on the hospital, which was started from the time the co-operative was organized.

Others May Follow
That the Elk City hospital would be followed by others as fast as the growth of the Co-Operative Health Association and its finances permitted, and that it might be the nucleus of a great system of co-operative, and even the beginning of the change that is bound to come in the economies of medical service, was the statement made by Mr. Simpson.

"How they are going to hate to see the price of medical service brought down," Simpson said. "It has become a disease which brings a person to the hospital is no worse than the financial distress that accompanies it. No wonder the other doctors are howling when their graft is menaced."

Protection to Farmers
Dr. Shadid explained that the Co-Operative Health Association had been formed for the purpose of protecting the farmers as consumers of medical and hospital service. He said that many farmers had lost their farms through ill health to their families, and too many of them had paid ungodly prices for operations, hospitalization and treatment. Too many have had sickness in their families and are unable to avail themselves of the benefits of doctors and specialists and hospitals.

Dr. Shadid said that on one hand are the people with their ill and their poverty, and on the other hand stand an army of doctors, surgeons and specialists with modern means of examination and treatment and the two are unable to get together because the people are not able to pay. He said the purpose of the organization was to form an association where they may build their own hospital, and have the town doctors on a salary basis and thus bring down the cost of doctors and hospitals within the means of every man regardless of economic status.

SUIT SETTLED BY AGREEMENT

Stipulation Entered Into by Frenzel And Yeater

A stipulation by attorneys late Thursday afternoon ended the suit of Henry C. Frenzel and others against Roy A. Yeater and others in which the amount of $750 was alleged by the plaintiff to be due him for rental of a farm in Moscow township. The case was opened before a jury in Judge C. L. Ely's court Thursday morning.

Under the terms of the stipulation, Yeater is to pay Frenzel the sum of $500 in cash at once, and he is also to transfer to Frenzel the first $220 of the dividend if declared to that amount on the $500 now on deposit in the Union Savings bank of Wilton, now in receivership. All of the balance of the dividend on the deposit is to be paid to Yeater. The amount had been deposited by Yeater as the proceeds from the sale of hogs.

Frenzel, under the terms of the stipulation, agrees to accept $750 as full payment of rent for the farm owned by Frenzel and now occupied by Yeater, and the plaintiff agrees to cancel the lease and release the defendant from the contract for the year and to vacate the premises on or before March 1, 1922. The plaintiff also agrees to furnish a written release to enclose the north end of the farm where it adjoins highway No. 32, and Yeater is to assist a man furnished by Frenzel to erect the fence. Costs of the case are to be paid to the defendant, who is to be released from the lien held by Frenzel on the hogs.

The petit jury was excused until Monday at 9 a. m., when the suit of Gilbert C. Oberhaus of Muscatine against the Progressive Publishing company, over an alleged account for painting and decorating, is scheduled to be heard by a jury.

The suit of E. W. Backus, receiver for the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company, over an alleged account due for print paper, is set for next Tuesday morning.

LONDON.—(INS)—Three hundred times a bride but still unweird is the "reced" of Lucy Clayton. The explanation? Lucy is a mannequin. "I have worn so many kinds of wedding dresses at fashion parades that I'm sure I shan't get the slightest kick from putting one on for my own wedding, when it comes," Lucy said. "I've heard the Wedding March played so often I could whistle it backwards. All I want when my own marriage comes is a civil ceremony, a few flowers and a kiss, no flowers and no music. That will be thrilling."

LEARN TO KNOW THE RIGHT WORD

By W. C. Nicholson

IN PASSING
(Find the error in this article) — From an unknown person in a certain state, there came to "The Right Word," sometime ago, a speech, which this unknown person asserted contained a few errors. In looking over the subject matter, the writer of this column found quite a few mistakes and decided to use some of them for the benefit of those who may read this article.

Note the following sentence: "I shall assume in the beginning that each of you are here for the same purpose." "Each" is the subject of the subordinate clause and should, therefore, be followed by "is," as, that each of you is for the same purpose.

Yesterday's error: "Don't use 'because' in this kind of a sentence." Correct: Don't use "because" in this kind of sentence.

Who will be submitted to the legislature, or what? Can you decide this question from the following: "...they shall report to the governor and the governor shall submit the same to the legislature." Maybe this will help. "...they shall report to the governor, who shall, in turn, submit all recommendations to the legislature."

Let us attack the word "like" in the following sentence: "...but unless you would adopt a uniform rule like congress has done..." "Like" is not a conjunction. Correct: but unless you would adopt a uniform rule as congress has done. Copyright 1921 by Associated Newspapers.

The man is said to have appeared at a farm house near Muscatine, stating that he was an insurance representative of Mr. Baker, and offering to take sweet potatoes in trade for the insurance. He promised to call at the home the following day, but failed to do so.

New Daffodils Now on the Market

American gardeners will have opportunity this fall to obtain some of the newer daffodils for their gardens. While these fine daffodils, the finest of the narcissus family, have had wide distribution abroad, the federal quarantine which seven years ago barred further importation of daffodils except for the purpose of commercial propagation set gardeners of the United States that many years behind the time in daffodils.

They are far finer than the old familiar types and we have had glimpses of some of them at the flower shows during the past two years, sufficient to know that in size, form and coloring they are revelations compared with the older types. They are still expensive owing to limited supply but some of them have been propagated in sufficient quantity to be obtainable at fairly reasonable prices.

The average gardener isn't paying anywhere from 35 to $500 for a single daffodil bulb at which some of the new ones are quoted in lists of daffodil specialists but bulbs of some of the newer ones can be obtained at prices within reach and the natural increase of a single bulb will in two or three years provide sufficient bulbs for a substantial planting.

Some of the newer daffodils are ultimately bound to supplant old timers because they are of similar coloring but larger and finer in every way. However, that time is distant and the main plantings can be made with the older varieties which in large masses will give as fine effect as the new and expensive beauties. Order new daffodils early as the supply is limited.

The finest types in the modern varieties known as incomparable, Barri and Leedsi types. There are huge new trumpets of surprising size but not differing greatly in color from the older types. Pink toned trumpets have been attained through the skill of foreign daffodil breeders but they are still very scarce and high priced, and are something to look forward to in the future.

White perianths and brilliant red cups are typical of some of the new forms while in the all white Leedsi class some of the new ones, have trumpets that makes it difficult to tell them from the true trumpet daffodils. Lord Kitchener is one of these that is now at modest price compared with some of the new ones. As the entire supply of any named daffodil comes from one original bulb only through offsets, it can readily be seen why new bulbs are high priced and that it takes a number of years to obtain a sufficiently large stock to permit them to be sold at low prices. A new variety originates from seed and six years are required to bring a seedling into bloom.

Plant Early Tulips for Brilliance

Early tulips produce the first brilliant flash of color in the garden. They provide the first burst of brilliant red, the first bright pinks and the brightest yellows. They make solid masses of bloom that give display which can be seen at great distances. The tulip in its various types is the most brilliant of garden material and indispensable.

The single early tulips are the earliest of all the family, preceding the taller and more stately May flowering tulips by three weeks and giving even more brilliant coloring than the later kinds. They deserve lavish planting. In addition to their garden value they are the easiest of all the tulips for flowering indoors.

The single types are excellent material for formal beds, their even height according to variety, their short stiff stems and regularly shaped bloom making them ideal for the purpose. They should be planted in generous quantity, 100 bulbs making a bed six feet square. They thrive in either sun or shade but the single earlies are best in full sun which brings them into bloom more quickly.

In preparing the bed only one precaution should be borne in mind—Tulips will not stand strong fertilizer and stable manure will kill them if fresh and do very little good unless so old and decayed that it provides little more than humus. Bone meal is the only safe fertilizer, a little to be dropped under the bulb when planted. Some of the balanced commercial fertilizers may be scattered lightly over the bed after the bulbs are in the ground to good advantage to fertilizer leaching down to the bulb.

To produce sheets of color, the early tulips should be planted rather closely, 5 inches apart each way. The bulbs should be set from 3 to 5 inches deep, measuring from the shoulder, not the tip of the bulb. The shoulder is the bulge just below the tip. In light soils plant 5 inches deep. In heavier soils 3 inches is sufficient. The soil should be well dug and pulverized.

Unless the soil is sandy and naturally very well drained, it is best to elevate the beds about six inches above surrounding territory to provide drainage as standing water on the beds is fatal. While it is not necessary to mulch tulip beds and should not be done unless it certainly will be removed early in the spring before the bulbs get into growth in heavy soils where there is considerable heaving during winter it is advisable to give a light covering. If left on, the bulbs will force their way through it.

Their many friends are glad to hear they are improved.

"CATTLE FRONT" SEEN FROM AIR

Free Press Man Views Scene Thursday as Hoffman's Guest

Through courtesy extended by W. M. Groves, manager of the Muscatine airport, and Ernest Hoffman of Muscatine who was awarded his pilot's license Wednesday, W. C. Carpenter of the Free Press was given a bird's eye view of the scene of the latest resistance to the compulsory bovine T. B. cattle tests. The trip to Des Moines county and return was made in the two place Curtis Wright plane owned by Mr. Groves. Carpenter was the first passenger to be flown by Hoffman.

Despite the "rough" weather the trip was made in one hour and ten minutes. An average speed of 80 miles an hour was made.

With the constant arrival of additional national guardsmen the tri-state fair grounds, where the soldiers rushed to the "cattle front" are encamped, is taking on the appearance of a tented city. Mr. Carpenter reports. At the Jacob Everman farm, where more than 1,000 farmers were segregated Wednesday, everything is peaceful and serene, according to the observer. The objects which gathered there have disbanded and the farm now has much the appearance of any other tract of land in that vicinity.

On the return trip Mr. Hoffman lost his way after passing over Wapello and today is wondering why other cities don't follow the example of Muscatine and place signs on top of the taller buildings so that aviators may know what cities they are passing over.

Plane Crash Brings Arrest of Aviator

CHICAGO (INS)—It took an airplane crash to bring Robert Quigley within the toils of the law, and today he occupied a jail cell, facing charges of non-support. His bright red plane was in ruins after crashing into a tree near his wife's home. Mrs. Quigley told authorities that her husband eluded the non-support warrant by crossing the boundary line into Indiana, where he bought his plane. He was in the habit of flying across the state line and swooping down over her home, Mrs. Quigley said, until he swooped too low and crashed. Quigley was not injured.

Organized Medicine Wields Great Influence Over Nation

Few people realize the tremendous influence of organized medicine upon the lives and health of the public, or how the control of the people by organized medicine has increased year by year.

The American Medical Association was first incorporated in 1897 but it was not until 1902 that the articles of incorporation were revised and the real purposes of the Association disclosed. The following is quoted from articles of incorporation at that time which will show that the intention of those in control even then was to eventually have an absolute monopoly for medical control of the people. The articles of incorporation stated: "The object of this Association shall be to federate into one compact organization the medical profession of the United States . . . secure the enactment of enforcement of medical laws . . . safeguard the material interests of the medical profession . . . direct public opinion in regard to state medicine etc."

The above frank statement of the intentions of the Association remained unchanged for two years, then owing to criticism that it was a "dead giveaway" of what the purposes of the organization really were, the articles were revised and the object of the organization stated as being "to promote the science and art of medicine" under which general objective it could do almost anything it pleased without giving details. It was incorporated in Illinois and year by year has increased its power and its control over the people until at the present time its subsidiary branches extend to every community in the U. S. and the activities of these many branches are all part of the vast program formulated at headquarters in Chicago. The policies of the national organization are carried out by the State Societies.

The work of the different State Societies is carried on by committees, such as the Committee on Publicity, Committee on Finance, etc. Then there are the county units and the city.

Closely associated with the A. M. A. is the U. S. Public Health Service and the physicians composing the Service are nearly always "regular" or Allopathic physicians who are members of the A. M. A. The same may be said of numerous officers of one branch or another of the organization which operate independently of the A. M. A. and have large funds at their disposal. The officers and of one branch are usually on the boards of others, or organization which operate independently of the A. M. A. and have large funds at their disposal. The officers and of one branch are usually on the boards of others, or organization which operate independently of the A. M. A. and have large funds at their disposal.

When it is considered that there are over 50,000 physicians in the U. S. who are members of the American Medical Association, and that of these doctors a large proportion hold positions either in the United States Public Health Service, on State Examining Boards, City Health Departments, on the staffs of hospitals, etc., some idea of the power of the organization may be realized. Due to their code of ethics all must co-operate to the advantage of fellow physicians, never take any action against him or be a party to any action detrimental to his best interests.

Due to recent Acts of Congress mentioned in previous installments of this series, medical control has been legalized to a large extent and has obtained tremendous monopolistic powers. While originally the A. M. A. was incorporated "primarily to promote the financial security of its members" it has entered into many other activities and has widened the scope of medical and welfare policies until at present every activity of the public which is even remotely related to health or welfare comes under the supervision of the medical trust.

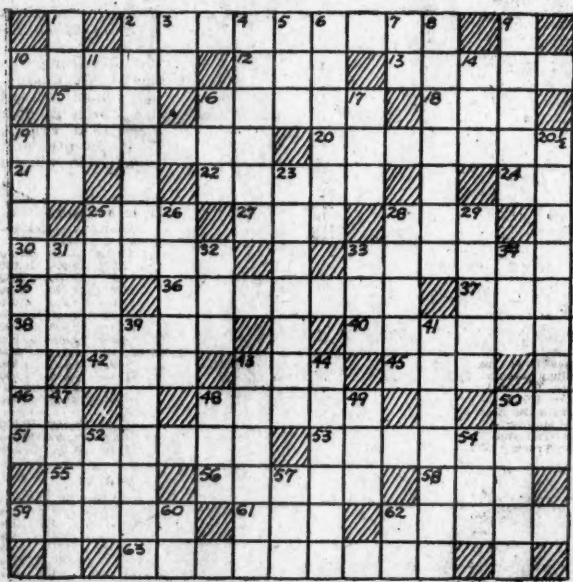

An example of the close co-operation between the many branches of organized medicine is illustrated in the recent legislation at Washington which created the President's White House Conference on Child Health and Protection. Almost without exception there is a committee in each of the State Societies called the State Division of this conference which is co-operating in every possible way to carry on the work of the conference in each of the respective States.

The enactment of legislation mentioned gives the medical trust a legal control over the nation's health which was lacking previously. It's ultimate aim is to secure an absolute monopoly in all matters pertaining to health administration. The public is seriously affected by the activities of this corporation and its subsidiaries which extend to every area in the U. S. Legislators are bombarded with requests concerning proposed medical legislation. As an example, in the last session of the Illinois Legislature there were 200 medical bills or bills of a medical nature which came up. Many of these proposed bills were in regard to medication. One was to make vaccination compulsory in the State of Illinois. However, this bill was not passed. In other States, however, such bills have been passed with others which force medication on the people, such as vaccines and serums. The effectiveness of vaccine and serum treatment has never been proved. On the contrary it has been proved to be useless and dangerous to those inoculated, but just the same it would be forced on the people by organized medicine, and that is one of the most serious menaces of control by organized medicine—so-called preventive medicine with its serums and vaccines.

Caught in the Act

By PHIL NOWLAN and DICK CALKINS

Sunday School Lesson

GOLDEN TEXT—And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-17. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Working for Jesus in a Great City. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Working and Preaching in a Great City. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working for Christ in a Great City. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity in a Cosmopolitan City.

The establishment of the church at Corinth is an example of missionary endeavor for all ages.

I. The True Missionary Method (vv. 1-3).

Paul came to Corinth a stranger. He did not have an advance agent to do his advertising, neither did he have his photograph put in the daily paper with a sensational announcement upon his arrival at Corinth. His method of gaining a foothold in Corinth was:

1. Finding a home (v. 2). This he found with Aquila and Priscilla, Jews who were recently expelled from Rome by the cruel edict of Claudius.

2. He toiled for his daily bread (v. 3). He was of the same craft with his hosts, who were tent makers. Every child among the Jews was taught some trade by means of which he could gain a livelihood should occasion require.

II. Preaching in the Synagogue at Corinth (vv. 4-8).

1. Though compelled to toil for a living while getting a foothold in Corinth, he did not lose sight of his main work (v. 4). He reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, persuading the Jews and the Greeks.

2. His activity was increased when

Silas and Timothy came (v. 5) which resulted from three causes:

a. They brought good news from the church at Thessalonica (1 Thess. 2:19). Being relieved from the necessity of toiling for a living, he could now devote more time to the preaching of the gospel.

b. Silas and Timothy became assistants to Paul in the work.

c. Paul opposed (v. 6). His increased activity was met with increased opposition. As the Lord's ministers become more aggressive in their work, the ministers of Satan put forth corresponding efforts in opposition.

3. Paul announces his purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6), because of the blasphemy and opposition of the Jews.

4. He did not go far away (v. 7). He remained sufficiently near those whose hearts God had touched so that they could easily find him.

5. His success (v. 2). Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted. Perhaps Paul's severity in turning away from them moved Crispus to act. Pressure to an immediate decision is helpful to some. They realize that it is now or never. Many others followed the example of Crispus. Paul varied from his usual custom and baptized Crispus, who was an important man (1 Cor. 1:14).

III. Paul's Vision (vv. 9-11).

His experiences since coming to Europe were very trying. He needed encouragement at this time. It is just like the Lord to come at the time of the servant's greatest need. Note the Lord's words to him:

1. "Be not afraid." When one is executing the commission of the Lord he need not be afraid.

2. "Speak and hold not thy peace." The one who has heard the voice of God cannot refrain from speaking.

3. "I am with thee." The Lord is with everyone who faithfully carries out his command.

4. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee." The one sent by the Lord to do a work is immune from harm until his work is done.

5. "I have much people in this city." It is most encouraging to know that in the great cities the Lord has his own people and that the one who goes in his name shall have fruit for his service.

IV. Paul Before Gallio (vv. 12-17).

1. The charge against him (v. 13). They accused him of persuading men to worship God contrary to the law.

2. Gallio's decision (vv. 14-16). He decided that it was not his concern to settle disputes concerning matters of the Jewish law.

3. Sosthenes (v. 17). In all probability he was leading the attack upon Paul. The Greeks seemed to have sympathized with Paul. Therefore, they turned against his enemy.

The Will of Christ

If, then, the will of Christ is not being fulfilled through us, if there is good that it belongs to us to do, but which remains undone, then the point of juncture with Christ is the point that needs looking to . . . the reason of our fruitlessness is the simple one, that we are not closely enough attached to Christ. —Marcus Dods.

Results From Prayer

More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of.—Tennyson.

Loyola College of Baltimore has a player named Plozsky. He deserves more limelight. A name like that should make the team at either Notre Dame or Fordham.

MURDERESS IS EXPECTED TO GIVE SELF UP

Declare That Woman May Be a Tool Of Drug Ring

In hiding in a near Los Angeles, on just before the Mexican border. Two rewards, totaling $2,500 were offered this morning in Los Angeles for information leading to the arrest of Mrs. Judd, both by newspapers.

Phoenix authorities asked Governor George W. P. Hunt of Arizona to offer a reward.

Meanwhile in Los Angeles, Dr. Judd was said to be seeking means of raising a defense fund for his wife.

It is believed Mrs. Judd is without money to continue her flight. Dr. Judd is in reduced circumstances.

Tool of Drug Ring

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (INS) — Mrs. Ruth Judd, 27, accused of killing her "dearest friends" Agnes Lerol, a nurse, and Hedwig Samuelson, a school teacher, and shipping their bodies in two trunks to Los Angeles, was the tool of a drug ring, according to Sheriff J. R. McFadden of Phoenix.

"Miss Lerol and Miss Samuelson, in my belief, had found out 'too much' about the narcotic traffic and a man supervised the murders — using Mrs. Judd to do the actual killing and helping her place the bodies in trunks," Sheriff McFadden said.

"Drug dealers no doubt desired that Miss Lerol and Miss Samuelson be put out of the way," he declared.

Jealousy Minor Factor

Jealousy, he said, was only a minor factor in the double trunk murder.

"It isn't the first time in Phoenix that men and women have paid with their lives for knowing too much about the drug traffic," he said, and pointed to the strange and unsolved deaths two years ago of Paul Reynolds, a Department of Justice agent from Washington, D. C., and Paul McNaer, a prominent Phoenixian.

Bodies of Reynolds and McNaer, battered and bullet riddled, were found floating in a canal on the outskirts of the city. Reynolds had been secretly sent here from Washington to secretly investigate other government agents in an effort to break up a drug ring.

Reynolds was killed on the eve of his departure for Washington with several information. Two other government agents still are here working to solve the two murders. McNaer apparently was killed "because he knew too much," and Sheriff McFadden believed that Lerol and Samuelson were murdered for the same reason.

Man Helped Mrs. Judd

A man helped Mrs. Judd to dispose of the bodies, Sheriff McFadden said. "I learned from her friend at the hospital that she was deathly afraid of blood, and she was of too slender a build to dismember a body without assistance."

Sheriff McFadden, tall stalwart of the desert, was trying to trace a telephone call to Lucille Moore, a nurse, and daughter of a professor at the University of Oklahoma. She attended a party given by Miss Lerol and Miss Samuelson last Thursday night, Oct. 15, she was told by a man over the telephone yesterday.

"Shut up; you've talked too much already."

Investigator F. A. Hickernell said that Miss Moore recognized the voice, and had provided another clue that may lead to additional light on the events directly before the double murder.

DETECTIVE GIVES VIEWS

Formerly Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the U. S. Department of Justice

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (INS) — Mrs. Ruth Judd is alive. I base my statement on the theory that she, without doubt, is in hiding with friends. She is not the type to take her own life.

There is a remote possibility that she may be found dead, that is to say she may have been murdered. However, this theory, that is the one of her being found murdered, does not fit in with other known facts in the case.

I believe that her brother's statement that he let her out of the machine in the middle of downtown Los Angeles is false to the last letter. As I have stated previously, I believe that she is hiding in Los Angeles. As far as is known at present, she did not have sufficient funds to travel to Mexico or other places, unless she happened to obtain money from some source investigators know nothing about at present.

Jealousy Causes Murders

Jealousy among themselves still remains the motive for the slayings, as I see it. They did not fight over a man.

I have questioned J. J. "Jack" Halloran and repeat that the women were not slain because of a man. They had too much unnatural affection for each other.

A fair survey of all the known facts in the Samuelson-Lerol trunk murder mystery gives not a single positive clue that Mrs. Judd had an accomplice in the actual commission of the crime.

Mrs. Judd might have thought of giving her two women friends a ride out into the desert and shooting them to death there and abandoning their dead bodies, but there is no evidence showing that she actually did borrow a car. None of the three girls had a car and the single known person from whom she asked a loan of a car, refused her. That night shots were heard by a nearby neighbor of the Samuelson and Lerol girls.

Could Handle Limp Bodies

Mrs. Judd, having had considerable nursing experience, would have been able, in spite of her smallness, to handle a limp body. I have observed very small girls

STEEL INDUSTRY MAKING GAINS

Schwab Says Economy Will Lead Business From Depression

ness which might accrue from building navy vessels and armaments.

Schwab pointed out that America was on the upward move last spring.

"We stepped steadily from the first of the year," he said. "Then came the 'Our production curve had in breakdown of finances in central Europe which spread to England and brought about violent repercussions to our own shores."

Schwab termed the indifference to governmental costs as one of the worst features of American life. "I refer particularly to our local governments, state, city and county," he said. "Here we find colossal wastes which are a dead weight on business and the public."

He laid only partial blame for this on the politicians.

"There is the waste of racketeering, the waste in countless bureaus, the extravagance in administration," he said.

Schwab expressed the regret of the steel industry for the necessity of recent wage cutting.

"We held to the old wage rates as long as our balance sheets would permit," he said. "But with the liquidation of prices and values in all directions it was necessary to yield to economic law."

He added that any step which fosters business in a sound economic way is an aid to our national prosperity. He recommended to the industrial authorities the building of plants "until such time as the need for added capacity is clearly apparent."

"The overbuilding of our industry is not nonsensical as the competition in armaments," he said. "The capacity of the steel industry, including uncompleted works, is 68,000,000 tons of ingots annually."

"Our rate of production this year is 37 per cent of capacity. Even in 1929, with its output of 54,000,000 tons, we were using 80 per cent of the present capacity and that in process of construction."

"It is wise to build ahead of needs. We shall require these vast facilities to the steel industry, and improvement of production methods," Schwab declared.

"I believe in the continued growth of our country, the essential strength of the steel industry, and the ability of our nation to master the problems of a complicated age. 'If this be optimism, make the most of it.'"

When the baggage truck called at the North Second street address for the trunk in response to her telephone call the men found it greatly overweight and told her that they could not check it through to its destination.

Instead of letting the trunk go to the railroad station baggage room, she ordered the trunk taken from the apartment on Brill street.

At the street house the big trunk was lightened. By this time rigor mortis probably had set in. In this event either body would have been difficult for anyone to handle, large or small, so one of the bodies was dissected. Note that the lighter and easier handled corpse was dismembered. Maybe part of the cutting had to be done on the body when it was in the trunk.

After the Samuelson girl's body had been distributed between a small trunk and a suitcase, the owner of the apartment and his son were asked to take them to the station.

Might Have Got Brother's Aid

When the trunks reached Los Angeles, Mrs. Judd might well have enlisted the aid of her young brother to help her dispose of the trunks. Above all others, she could rely upon a brother to help her. If she had another accomplice, he would have been at the Los Angeles railroad station right at the time the train arrived. If I understand correctly, she went quite a distance to get her brother out of the trunk, most of the flow of blood resulting from dismemberment could have been drained away in a bucket or a bathtub. This was not done. A copious flow took place in at least one of the trunks. An accomplice, especially a man, and above all a physician, would have taken precautions against the seeping of blood.

hours before the death of the killed women before the death of the Samuelson girl.

This should have been expected. The real friction appears to have existed between Mrs. Judd and the Lerol girl. Both were bidding for the favor of the Samuelson girl. Mrs. Judd could have shot the Lerol girl and later not being able to control the Samuelson girl, for personal safety reasons, found it advisable to do away with Miss Samuelson.

chief to Leavenworth penitentiary for income tax evasion.

A large crowd gathered outside the building and in the corridors. Capone arrived in a taxicab. He waved soberly to the crowd which shouted salutes to him. He reached the courtroom ahead of his lawyers and seemed serious and preoccupied.

The index finger of his right hand was bandaged. He said he accidentally cut the finger.

Judge Wilkerson ascended the bench shortly after 10 o'clock and court was promptly called to order.

Seeks Arrest of Judgment

Defense attorney Albert Pink immediately made a motion for an arrest of judgment.

Pink said that cold and could hardly talk above a whisper. In arguing the motion he said counts 1, 5 and 9, the felony counts on which Capone was convicted, "do not inform the defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation within the requirements of the constitution and the United States and fundamental rules of law."

Pink contended that the charge "is laid down in the language of the statute, contrary to the rule so often announced by the supreme court of the United States."

"Counts 1, 5 and 9 are based upon a statute which is unconstitutional and void because it is vague, indefinite and uncertain," Pink declared. "It does not inform the defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation against him."

Regarding counts 12 and 18, the misdemeanor counts on which Capone was convicted, Pink told Judge Wilkerson they did not aver facts constituting an offense because "it is not alleged that no return was made."

U. S. Opposes Action

Assistant states attorney Jacob I. Grossman opposed the granting of the motion to arrest judgment. He cited numerous legal authorities to support his contention that the indictment was sufficiently clear and specific in all the counts.

"What the defense evidently would have had us do would be to put the evidence in the indictment," Grossman declared. "The charges against this defendant were made sufficiently clear. There was no ambiguity in the language of the indictment."

Premier Laval, accompanied by Warren D. Robbins, chief of the White House protocol, and American dignitaries, motored in White House automobiles to the unknown's tomb. Drawn up as a guard of honor was a detachment of soldiers from the Washington barracks. Taps were sounded. Laval stood with bowed head for a moment and the simple ceremony was over.

At the entrance to the cemetery, hard by Ft. Myer, the premier was met by a troop of the 3d Cavalry, which formed his escort to the tomb. As the procession moved in the 16th U. S. field artillery boomed forth a salute of 19 guns.

Four Blocks Apart

and despised herself because she could not think of any one else. Suddenly Jimmy's whole personality changed. Who was he? A sang-and-dance man from some burlesque house who had nimble heels and rhythm in his voice. What interests could she possibly have in common with him? His dancing, his singing! She'd grow tired of these things rather soon. Aside from his so-called talent, what did he have? Qualities of heart and soul? Yes, but hundreds of men had those. Did she, Julie Treherne, hold herself so cheaply that she could be won by blue eyes and freckles?

And in what frame of mind was she that she should stoop to ask such a question of herself? She loved Ralph.

"You're not going, Julie?" It was Dolly calling across the room. She was almost at the door. She moved as if she were fleeing from terrible danger.

"Sorry," she called to Dolly, "but I had only a moment and that's up."

She was at the door, through it, in a moment. She paused outside, breathing heavily, indignant at herself. Across her eyes floated a picture of Jimmy waiting on the piano, then sinking reluctantly back. She supposed he'd think she was running away from him.

Then self-control, that had so inexplicably deserted her, returned. She laughed at herself. Why, she was behaving like a schoolgirl, turning hot and cold at sight of some callow prep-school boy.

But she was a grown woman, a woman engaged, soon to be married. What on earth was the matter with her?

She disdained a taxi and started walking home. The crisp air cooled her fevered cheeks, and she began to analyze herself.

She loved Ralph. Yes. But Jimmy Farrell, incredible though it seemed, exerted some strange fascination for her. It was love, it couldn't be love.

Jimmy Farrell was coming to place an American youth as one could find in a month's searching of the small towns of the country. He certainly was not up to specification according to popular conception of the heart-breaking male. And she could be certain that other girls did not find him overwhelming. Even silly Dolly Wanders was attracted to him simply because of his sudden success and because of the further fact that he was nice.

Then what was wrong with her? She had come to no answer to this repeated question when she reached home. Outwardly composed, but still in an inner turmoil, she was trying to read a magazine when the telephone rang.

"Say, Julie," came the aggrieved voice of Jimmy. "I thought you said I could take you home."

Something about the juvenile reproach in his tones almost made her laugh. So—she had been afraid of this small boy?

"I really couldn't stay more than a minute," she replied, "and I knew I'd break up the party if I took you with me."

"What did I care about the party?" he demanded. "But I did," she rebuked him. "Dolly is a friend of mine."

"Yeah, I know that, but still—Julie, I gotta see you."

"Well, we'll meet again some time," she laughed. "That isn't good enough," he said. "When may I come to tea?"

Funny that she should notice that he said "my number" instead of his usual "I know for my number."

"I phoned yesterday, didn't I?" she asked.

"Yes, but that was yesterday. Today's another day, and tomorrow is something else again. Julie, can you come to the Trebzon tonight? Now, don't say 'no.' I want to see you. I want to talk to you."

"I'm sorry, but I can't," she replied. "Gee, I wish you would," he said pleadingly. "I can't," she said. "I'll telephone soon."

Abruptly she hung up the instrument.

NEW BIDS FOR GRAVEL CALLED

Private Letting Is Held When Bids Are Rejected

Members of the Muscatine county board of supervisors and contractors and their representatives, were still in conference today on the matter of awarding contracts for making improvements to the county farm buildings, and the surfacing with rock or gravel of county trunk and local county highways.

Two bids for graveling were rejected by the supervisors Thursday afternoon for the reason that part of the bidders had failed to file their financial statements as required by law. The board decided to receive private bids at 1:30 today, the bidding to be confined to those who submitted estimates on Thursday.

It was decided by the board that gravel must be furnished for all roads excepting road P, which will be surfaced with class A crushed rock. In all events, the bidders must furnish financial statements, they were informed. Three bids were received Thursday morning for making repairs to buildings at the county farm, but final action on these bids was deferred until taken today.

J. S. Morrison, district engineer for the state highway commission, and J. S. Boyd, assistant, are in the city to attend the gravel letting, and are conferring with County Engineer F. P. G. Habbas relative to highway work in the county.

Halloween Parade Will Be Held After 10 p. m. on Oct. 31

The Halloween parade and festival, which will be sponsored by the Muscatine Concert band, will be held between 10 p. m. and 10:15 p. m. on Oct. 31. This decision was reached Thursday evening when representatives of the band met with the chamber of commerce board of directors.

By staging the parade at that hour, it was pointed out, all clerks and business men would be enabled to take part, as most of the shopping would be done by that time.

Sentiment has also been voiced that high school students and other civic organizations participate in the event.

Other matters which came before the chamber of commerce board of directors meeting was a discussion of a communication from the Mississippi Valley association regarding the waterways project. Muscatine has been asked to raise $300 for legislation favorable to the nine foot channel in the Mississippi river. No action was taken by the directors.

The board also received a communication from the C. M. & St. Paul railway that the Interstate Commerce commission had suspended the proposed freight increase.

war, but for peace," he continued. "Throughout his address, Dr. Steiner referred to the 'Otter confusion' in which we are living today with its bad influence toward the stamping out of creative thinking in youth."

"We have chased youth across the universe from one thing to another until the creative interests are lost. This world crisis is greater than an economic one. A short time ago men had a chance to prove themselves free and equal, but it is not so today. Too many that are being born, stay where they are."

"Children must be freed from race, class, and religious prejudices before they can rise. 'The time will come when a man will be measured by his sense of values and altruistic outlook and capacity for love rather than his ability to accumulate money. 'What we need more than anything else in society today is brotherhood. We will never have a new world, whatever its creed, until we have respect for personalities. 'We can work intellectually to free men from prejudice but it must come from our hearts first, he concluded. The honor guest at the meeting was Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, first vice-president of the National P. T.
